City to pursue EPA in court

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The city is looking for a legal way to force the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to explain its "radical plan" for cleaning up Taracorp lead contamination.

The EPA announced Monday it will proceed with a plan that includes removal of six inches of soil in yards in a 55-block area of Granite City and Madison where the lead level is found to exceed 500 parts per million.

City officials, residents and some scientists have expressed doubts about the scientific validity of the 500 ppm threshold and the necessity of soil removal.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse told the City Council on Tuesday that he had instructed City Attorney Mark Goldenberg to begin looking at possible legal actions.

Also at a council meeting, Madison

Mayor John Bellicoff said his city would seek legal action against the EPA.

Goldenberg said he is looking into everything from administrative remedies within the EPA to possible court action.

"Basically, we are looking into if we have a legal standing someplace and, if we have a legal standing, where is the best forum to be heard. If we have a choice, it would be a state court in Madison County.

"But we'll go to federal court if we have to or we may be told to exhaust our remedies within the agency. I'm not sure what our options will be — it's not an area of law I practice every day."

The interest of Cruse and the city, Goldenberg said, is "obviously" protecting the health of the citizens. But the EPA, he said, has presented a plan "we perceive as pretty radical" without the EPA offering to show either the studies or thinking process it used to reach its conclusion.

The city, Goldenberg said, hopes to find a court or other forum where the EPA must explain itself.

At the same time, the city wants an opportunity to conduct independent testing, fact finding, and perhaps even obtain its own experts before a final cleanup decision is made.

The city also plans to establish contact with industries and others the EPA terms "potentially responsible parties" (PRPs) who actually foot the bill for Superfund cleanups — to see if they can share information about dealing with the EPA.

In previous meetings with PRPs, Goldenberg said, the city has been able to get information on the Taracorp project that was not offered by the EPA itself.

Goldenberg said the city shares the impression of many citizens that the EPA "just went through the motions" of a public-hearing process after it had made up its mind. The city wants to force the EPA to do more, he said.

Fighting the EPA may be tough, Goldenberg said, but he knows about tough battles from his representation of University of Illinois assistant basketball coach Jimmy Collins, who is battling the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"My preliminary opinion would be the NCAA is tougher than the EPA," Goldenberg said. "The NCAA is definitely of the opinion they don't have to answer to any court."

"But I may be wrong. If I get a fair hearing, I will win against the NCAA. I do know all the facts about the EPA yet."

Man dies climbing in rafters

GRANITE CITY — Police are continuing to investigate the death of a 25-year-old Granite City man who was electrocuted while apparently trespassing at the Granite City Steel complex.

The body of Michael Lindsey, 25, of the 1700 block of State Street was found by members of the Granite City Steel Security Division at approximately 11:30 p.m. Tuesday after he had apparently been shocked by a 6,900-volt electric wire while climbing in the rafters of the old 90-inch Building and then fallen 36 feet to the ground.

The security officers reported they had heard a scream come from the rafter area and found Lindsey's body on the ground. Police reported Lindsey was not an employee of Granite City Steel and had no official reason for being on the property.

He was pronounced dead at 12:25 a.m. Wednesday at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke said an autopsy was being performed Wednesday afternoon, but she said there was little doubt Lindsey had been electrocuted and had therefore died before the fall.

Granite hearing tonight

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A new comprehensive development plan for the city will be the subject of a public hearing tonight at 7 in the Granite City Township Building, 5900 Delmar Ave.

The plan, prepared by Campbell Design Group of St. Louis in conjunction with the city's Plan Commission, presents a 20-year outline covering all types of development within the city.

One of its primary features is projected future land use. Among the projections are:

- Industrial and commercial development of the farmland on the west side of Illinois 3 from the U.S. Army Price Support Center north to Interstate 270. Already in this area are the Granite City Auto Center and Northgate Industrial Park.

- A change from residential to industrial of several areas of West Granite including all of Lincoln Place, the 2000 through 3100 blocks of Cayuga, Denver and West 20th streets and the area along Missouri Avenue east of Logan Street.

- Industrial development of the now residential areas south of 18th Street from Madison Avenue to Cleveland Boulevard.

- Commercial development of the now residential area in East Granite between the south side of East 23rd Street and Edwardsville Road.

- Industrial development of the commercial and residential area on south limits of the city on both sides of Edwardsville Road from McCambridge Avenue to Carr Street.

- Residential development along both sides of the Alton & Southern railroad tracks north of Ponton road in the extreme northeast corner of the city.

- Commercial development along the north side of State Aid 35 (Horseshoe Lake Road).

Other features of the plan are proposed road and highway improvements, proposed drainage improvements, traffic and circulation improvements, and sewer improvements.

Stash Trash cast grows

By Dennis Grubaugh
Managing editor

GRANITE CITY — With each passing day, the April 21 cleanup of the Quad City area appears to be getting larger.

More than a dozen teams have officially signed up to compete to see who can pick up the most trash in the effort sponsored by the Community Pride Committee of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

The event, called Stash Trash Day, will be conducted throughout the area.

Teams will again use a golf theme for the cleanup. Team captains will soon be receiving instructions by mail from committee chairman Mary Brown of Granite City.

Laidlaw Waste Systems will again provide prizes for the "Golf Classic," Brown said.

On main highways, the Illinois Department of Transportation has requested that volunteers wear red safety jackets, and both IDOT and the Granite City Street Department have offered them to the effort.

All teams will start from Wilson Park and adults will return there for lunch later in the morning at Shelter No. 4.

The Soda company will again loan its wagon and will furnish soda for the picnic. National Super Market will be donating hot dogs and buns. Shop and Save has offered a $100 certificate for supplies.

Participating teams include:

- Coldwell Banker Star Realty, Arlington Civic Association, two teams from the Chain of Rocks Landfill (Metro-East Disposal), two teams from the Charles Melvin Price Support Center, the Women's Division of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Problem trailer due in court, but it may not last that long

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — When the tenants moved out of Shirley Whitaker's trailer home at 2310 Missouri Ave., she said "they gutted the place."

Since that time, the home has been a problem in the neighborhood and a thorn in the side of Building Inspector John Jakich.

In an inspection in October, Jakich found a long list of building code violations including a leaking roof, broken windows and screens, exposed wiring and many more.

It was bad then, Jakich said, but it's gotten worse.

Neighbors reported kids were breaking into the trailer and further destroying it. Almost everything that could be stolen was, and neighbors said they found themselves routinely calling police.

Jakich said the city took the case to court

Clean-air bill passes; Simon, Dixon vote no

WASHINGTON — In what he called "one of the most difficult decisions I've made in 40 years," U.S. Sen. Alan J. Dixon voted Tuesday against the Clean Air Bill. So did Sen. Paul Simon.

But it passed 99-11 and was sent to the House of Representatives.

Dixon, Senate majority chief deputy whip, said the Clean Air Bill in its current form would be particularly devastating to southern Illinois. "This bill is roaring in like Hurricane Hugo, leaving nothing but unemployment in its path," he said.

The Belleville Democrat emphasized what he called a lack of fairness and balance, and an overwhelming burden placed on midwestern states to resolve a national problem without just compensation.

Simon, D-Makanda, said the vote was one he had "agonized on" because of his support for clean air. However, he said, he was forced to oppose a bill that would put coal miners out of work and raise electricity rates in the state.

"In Illinois, we already pay the second-highest utility rates of any state in the nation. To ask us to pay even higher utility rates, as this bill does, is not fair," Simon said.

The legislation requires 111 coal-fired power plants mostly in the Midwest to make a 50 percent reduction in sulfur dioxide, the principal component in acid rain — a pollutant that reportedly damages forests, lakes and even buildings in the Northeast and Canada.

It also would force auto makers to reduce tailpipe emissions and require industries to install the "maximum available control technology" to curtail toxic pollution. The Bush administration estimates the legislation would cost about $20 billion per year.

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, said that as written the bill would increase electricity prices in southern Illinois by 15 to 25 percent.

"I support clean air but not if the burden is going to fall on the people of the Midwest," Costello said. "During the savings and loan crisis we all helped bail out Texas and California because Bush said it was

Man resists arrest twice

James B. Voils, 43, of Godfrey was charged with two counts of resisting arrest April 3 after he allegedly dragged a policeman hanging onto his auto 50 feet down the street.

Voils was stopped for suspicion of speeding at 7:25 a.m. at Second Street and Broadway. He allegedly told the patrolman he didn't have time to wait for the ticket to be made out, shoved the officer, got back into his car and started it. The patrolman reached into the car and struggled with Voils to turn off the ignition key while Voils drove down the street.

When the officer finally got the engine turned off, Voils turned it on again and drove off. Voils was pursued and apprehended in front of the Venice

Venice

Police Station at Fourth and Broadway.

While being booked, Voils allegedly shoved another officer. He was subdued.

Voils was charged with fleeing from police, disobeying a stop sign, two counts of disorderly conduct and two counts of resisting arrest. He was ordered released on his own recognizance later in the day by Associate Judge Bob Hennessey.

Juveniles at auto flee

Ronald White of the 600 block of Jefferson Street told police he scared off four juveniles who had tampered with his parked car at 8:48 p.m. April 1.

Wallet stolen, looted

Kathy DeBruce of Granite City, an employee of the Park Grill, 228 Broadway in Venice, reported the loss of her wallet from her purse while she was working April 3. DeBruce said she found the wallet in a dumpster behind the restaurant. Missing were $375 and a number of credit cards.

Copper tubing stolen

William Terrell of the 1000 block of Bissell Street told police somebody stole a line of copper tubing from his residence prior to April 1.

DUIs

Arrested after collision
Michael P. Goggins, 23, of St. Louis was arrested at about 3 a.m. April 1 after he was involved in an auto accident with another car at 19th Street and Madison Avenue.

He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol. A passenger in Goggins' car, Randall Anderson, was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he was treated and released.

Driver charged with DUI

David M. Widel, 17, of Granite City was arrested April 1 after his car struck a parked car on the parking lot of the Schnucks store in the Namco Village Shopping Center. He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and was released on $102 cash bail.

A juvenile passenger in the auto was released to the custody of his parents after a charge of unlawful possession of alcohol was filed.

TWO-CAR ACCIDENT: Granite City Fire Department personnel place Renee Bowling, 20, of Granite City into an ambulance. She was the driver of a car involved in a two-car accident at the intersection of State and 20th streets Tuesday afternoon. She was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center by city ambulance where she was treated for a back injury and later released.

Woman punched, husband arrested

Arthur J. Rogers, 31, of East St. Louis was arrested at 11:54 p.m. April 3 and booked for battery of his estranged wife. A half hour earlier, Rogers allegedly punched and partly choked Forliss Rogers of the 900 block of Webster Street. He was given a notice to appear in the Granite City court May 11.

Parked vehicle stolen
Keith A. Coakley of Granite City reported the theft of his vehicle the evening of March 30 while it was parked at Sixth and Farish streets. The vehicle was a black and silver 1989 Chevrolet Blazer S-10.

Bottles thrown at taxi

Several unidentified men threw bottles at a Rainbow Cab on the evening of April 3 after a man flagged the cab down but declined to rent it. The incident happened at Market Street and Ewing Avenue.

Tavern burglary attempt

Somebody unsuccessfully attempted to pry open a rear door of Minnie's Tavern, 1415 Fifth St., early in the morning of April 3.

Multiple rapes alleged

GRANITE CITY — A 30-year-old local woman allegedly was raped three times early Sunday by a man she knew and identified later to police.

The man is said to have forced his way into her apartment at 3 a.m., disarming her of a revolver she had held as she answered the door.

He then allegedly beat her and forced her to perform sexual acts before leaving at 6:25 a.m. Police are still investigating.

The woman said the man had been calling her, trying to get a date, since December. She said she had changed her phone number as a result.

Man stabs wife, arrested

Omer M. Keith, 35, of the 1700 block of Delmar Avenue was arrested Friday after his wife, Tina, 35, was found walking at 11 p.m. in the 1800 block of Delmar with a stab wound to her stomach.

Tina Keith told police Omer Keith stabbed her with a Bowie knife.

She was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where she was admitted. She was discharged Monday.

Keith was charged with misdemeanor battery. He was still in jail Tuesday morning, pending posting of cash bail of $502.

Resisting arrest alleged by officer

Alfred K. Nolen, 24, of the 2800 block of Denver Street was charged with resisting arrest April 1 after he allegedly kicked a policeman.

Police had received a report on an auto being driven in the 2100 block of Dewey Avenue. A few minutes later, at about 4:45 p.m., Nolen was seen driving a car that matched the description.

A policeman blocked the vehicle in an alley in the 2900 block of West 20th Street and alleged finding an open beer in the car.

Nolen allegedly kicked the officer while being arrested, leading to the charge of resisting arrest. Nolen also was booked for disorderly conduct and illegal transportation of alcohol. He was released on $256 cash bail.

Apartment Burglarized

Mark Arnold of the 2500 block of State Street told police April 3 that somebody burglarized his apartment during the early morning hours of April 1. Taken were a video cassette recorder, five rented movies, a pair of athletic shoes and two sweaters, the latter valued at $50.

Sherlock Holmes would have liked electrostatic dust prints

By David J. Brundage
Firearms training coordinator
Training and Application
Laboratory, Carbondale

Detecting and collecting shoe print evidence at crime scenes has always been a difficult task.

The magnifying glass used by Sir Doyle's Sherlock Holmes to uncover this "elementary" evidence has long been replaced by more sophisticated equipment in efforts to recover the elusive prints — the macro lens, magna powder, adhesive filters and even the portable laser have greatly enhanced the crime-scene technician's ability to locate, preserve and collect these delicate exhibits.

However, despite all the improvements used to catch the modern-day criminal, many shoe prints have been overlooked because they consisted of dusty particles or were in dusty surfaces and could not be seen, let alone effectively collected.

In the early 1970s, the Japanese tried to pick up dusty impressions by trying yet another technique — rubbing wool on a plastic sheet to generate static electricity and cause the dust particles to stick to the plastic. But the simple and ingenious procedure met with limited success.

In 1983, Scotland Yard developed an electronic device that showed more promise. This device has been modified over the last few years to the point where both equipment and technique are easy to use, relatively inexpensive (about $755 each) and highly successful.

The electrostatic dust filter used today by Illinois State Police technicians and forensic scientists now regularly collect or enhances many footwear impressions that previously could not have been recovered.

The principle is simple — static cling.

To make it work, the electrostatic lifting device delivers a high-voltage, low-amp charge to a collecting surface. The static charge attracts small particles of dust or dirt that are present in the electrical field, and the specks that have collected take on the shape of the footprint.

At the crime-scene tech examines the scene with oblique (indirect) lighting and locates a latent shoe print, he cuts a piece of special metal-backed mylar film (similar to home and auto window-tinting film) slightly larger than the potential print.

He then places the film, metal side up, over the print. Turning on the power supply from either the lifter's batteries or a normal 120-VAC electrical outlet, he places a high-voltage probe, a metal wand, on the metal surface of the film.

The volume is slowly increased until the technician hears a crackling noise as the current discharges against the film. The electrically charged dirt and dust particles of the impression transfer to the black underside of the film. When the film pulls down completely against the surface, the technician turns off the power and carefully removes the film.

The high contrast of the lifted print against the black film can now be easily photographed with one or two obliquely placed strobes.

It represents a real breakthrough for securing previously unusable or invisible dust or dirt impressions.

at dusk with parking lights only. Watch for children playing near the street who may not realize that your visibility has been reduced. The earlier darkness should alert parents to dress their children in light-colored clothing and decorate coats and jackets with reflector tape.

The 1988 accident statistics show the fatality rate increasing in Illinois between 3 and 7 p.m.

Split second avoids head-on crashes

The following is from the Office of the Illinois Secretary of State.

Head-on collisions are the most deadly motor vehicle accidents. Be prepared to make a split-second decision if an oncoming vehicle swerves into your lane suddenly.

The National Safety Council recommends using the "Four P's" to prevent a head-on collision.

1. Read the road ahead. You may see another vehicle cross the centerline in time to react safely.

2. Ride to the right.

3. Reduce speed.

4. Ride off the road. Driving off the edge of the road is safer than skidding.

If you are forced off the road, look for something to break your impact. It could be a soft object such as a bush, small tree or fence, or a fixed object like a tree, parked car or sign post.

Try to glance off the object. If you are unable to get off the road in time, try to glance off the oncoming vehicle. Hitting the vehicle at an angle is less dangerous than hitting head-on.

To reduce the seriousness of a head-on collision, make sure you and your passengers fasten your safety belts, lock your doors and secure all loose objects so they will not fly around the vehicle on impact. Take precautions every time you get in your vehicle.

If you are involved in an accident, turn off the vehicle's ignition, warn approaching traffic and send someone to get help. Administer first aid to victims if you are qualified.

Extension volunteers honored

Volunteer members of the program councils of the University of Illinois Extension Service in Madison County were recently honored.

Council members study the county situation and determine the priority problems toward which the Extension Service should direct its attention. Members assist the staff in keeping the county programs up-to-date and relevant to the needs of the people in the county.

Agnes P. Fryntzko of Granite City received special recognition for completing four years of service on the Extension Service Home Economics Council.

The University of Illinois Extension Service is an out-of-school educational organization for both adults and youths. The Extension Service staff and volunteers seek to assist people in learning how to achieve a healthier, more productive and more satisfying life and to provide continuous service in the development of a stronger community.

More information about the University of Illinois Extension Service in Madison County is available by telephone, 656-8400.

Lutheran Holy Week planned

Several special events are planned for Holy Week at Our Lord's Lutheran Church (ELCA), located on Illinois 159 at Interstate 55-70.

On Palm Sunday, April 8, Dr. Edwards Schroeder, co-founder of the Crossings Community in St. Louis, will speak during the adult education class at 9:30 a.m. and at worship services at 8:15 and 10:45 a.m.

Special services will be held at 7 p.m. on Maundy Thursday and on Good Friday. Then Haydn's "Seven Last Words of Christ on the Cross" will be performed by the Lincoln String Quartet of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Easter Sunday worship services are scheduled at 6:30, 8:15 and 10:45 a.m. on April 15. Visitors are welcome.

Hardy to present SLDP talk

Bob Hardy, a veteran co-anchor for KMOX Radio News in St. Louis and a longtime resident of the Metro East area, will conduct a Student Leadership Development Program (SLDP) module about "Analyzing Public Perception" at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 10, at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Hardy, a well-known radio personality for more than three decades in the St. Louis area, will speak in the Mississippi-Illinois Room of SIUE's University Center.

Hardy is one of several presenters for the leadership modules conducted twice on Tuesdays during the academic year. Participants in the April 10 module will evaluate the significance of personal charisma, perceived competence, and public trust on the leadership effectiveness of recent public figures.

For more information, the Carol Kimmel Student Leadership Development Center can be called at 692-2696 or, from St. Louis toll-free, (314) 621-5168, ext. 2686.

Divorced, widowed conference

The second annual Conference of Divorced, Separated, Single and Widowed "New Horizons" will be held Saturday, April 28, at the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows, 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the Dr. Tom Dooley Center. Those associated with all religious traditions will be welcome.

Sr. Grace Marie Mueller, Ph.D., will be the keynote speaker. She played a key role in the founding of the Arise Divorce Ministry in St. Louis and is one of the authors of the "Steps to Wholeness" recovery program for divorced and widowed. She has been active in the North American Conference of Separated and Divorced Catholics.

Registration is required. Deadline for registration is April 14. For additional information or registration, Brother Bill Johnson, OMI, of the Family Program at the Shrine can be contacted at 397-6700 (TTY) or, from St. Louis, 241-3400 (TTY).

Laureate Alpha holds dinner

Laureate Alpha Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the home of Alice Konecny of Collinsville recently.

Prior to the business session, a potluck dinner was enjoyed. President Juanita Calve presided and plans for the Founder's Day celebration were finalized. The event will be held at Tony's Restaurant in Maryville on April 25, with a social hour from 6:30 to 7 p.m. Dinner will be ordered from the menu.

Ways and Means chairman Dolores Byrnes announced the group's garage sale is set for Saturday, April 7, at the home of Imogene Forrest.

The sorority's city council meeting report was given by Forrest. The next City Council meeting is scheduled tonight at the home of Council President Vickie Barth.

Lora Mae Lombardi presented each member with a new "Book of Beta Sigma Phi". Evelyn Tolliver gave a book review of "The Two Wives of Teddy Roosevelt".

Dessert and coffee were served to: Bea Brackett, Dolores Dortch, Arlene Haldeman, Lora Mae Lombardi, Ruth Stoyanoff, Pat Tsigaloroff and those named.

The next meeting will be at the home of Juanita Calve. Ruth Stoyanoff will present the program.

Hearing: People colder, hungrier

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

EAST ST. LOUIS — Many people in southern Illinois are colder and hungrier than they were in past years, despite President George Bush's promises of a kinder, gentler America, said Sister Mary Simpson, Simpson spoke at a hearing sponsored by the Illinois Hunger Coalition at the Clyde Jordan Senior Citizens' Center in late March.

Ineffective government regulations hamper the work of charitable food distributors, according to testimony from Simpson and others at the hearing on area hunger.

The hearing brought together representatives from more than a dozen charitable food distributors from St. Clair County and elsewhere to trade information on how various programs are meeting the needs of the area's hungry.

Richard Nolton of the St. Louis Area Food Bank was the first to give testimony. His organization is an area distributor of federal food subsidies to more than 50 local agencies.

Nolton cited one organization, the Lardowne Awareness Community Committee, as an example of the work done by the groups he serves.

Lardowne, he said, serves 1,500 meals weekly on site and 15-20 families come for food pantry subsidies.

That's just one of many examples of the need here," said Nolton.

Nolton said stringent government regulations prevent his organization from purchasing the types of food people need most, like cheese.

Most of the federal subsidies his group distributes are for specified items, such as canned meats.

Also, since his group is based in St. Louis, the federal government strictly limits the amount of subsidy that can be used to feed hungry people in Illinois, even if the need is greater here than in Nolton's Missouri jurisdiction.

"So what you're saying is government rules and bureaucracy are keeping you from serving (Illinois)," but you'd otherwise have the resources," said panelist James Buford, of the Metro St. Louis Urban League.

"Yes, sir," Nolton answered.

Simpson then told the panel that budget cuts proposed by the Bush administration include a 25 percent cut in the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program, a 43 percent cut in Section 202 housing (a government assisted low-income housing program), a $14.2 million cut in the Senior Jobs Program for senior citizens, and a funding freeze in the Meals on Wheels program, which delivers hot meals to homebound adults.

She said she has seen people waiting in line overnight outside some food pantries to be able to receive food subsidies before the pantry runs out.

Irish group plans convention

The Clarion Hotel in downtown St. Louis will host the 8th North American Conference of Comhaltas Ceoltóirí Éireann, an international Irish cultural organization, April 20-22.

Highlight of the program will be an April 21 dinner-dance with entertainment by world champion on Irish dancers Michael Flatley of Chicago and Liam Harney of Boston.

Also scheduled for that day are workshops covering harp, uilleann pipes and tin whistle, Irish language, and set and ceilidh dancing.

Reservations for the dinner-dance are $30 per person and can be made by mailing a check to St. Louis Irish Arts, 7490 Whitehaven Drive, St. Louis 63123. The fee for all Saturday events is $50 as a package including the dinner, workshops, breakfast and lunch.

Call (314) 849-1662.

Angie Dickerson Backstoppers star

Hollywood star Angie Dickinson will be the featured guest April 17 at the 30th anniversary dinner for the Backstoppers.

The group is a funding organization that provides financial assistance to families of police and fire officers who are killed in the line of duty.

The dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the Adam's Mark Hotel in downtown St. Louis.

Awards will be presented at the dinner to Backstoppers past president Gene Frederic of Fred Eric Roofing and Jerry Clinton, president of Grey Eagle Distributors, which sponsors the Budweiser boxing promotion to benefit the Backstoppers.

The group was founded in 1959 by Richard Amberg with the support of key community leaders. It now has more than 650 members. For ticket information, Hal Richardson can be called at (314) 726-3118.

JULIE gets more calls than ever

In 1989 calls to JULIE — Joint Utility Locating Information for Excavators — caused a record 2.4 million messages to be sent to the system's 201 member companies, including Illinois Bell gas companies and other utilities whose service can be interrupted by random digging.

"We ask gardeners, farmers and excavators to call JULIE at least 48 hours before they start digging," said John Moran, Illinois Bell staff manager for outside plant protection.

Those planning to dig can call JULIE toll-free, at 1 (800) 892-0123.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a wife is injured as a result of her husband's negligence, should she be able to sue him and recover damages for her injury? Until recently, spouses in Illinois were prevented from suing each other for injuries sustained during the marriage, unless the injury resulted from an intentional act of the spouse at fault. On January 1, 1989, Illinois law was changed, and beginning on that date spouses could sue for any kind of tort committed during the marriage.

The question arose after the enactment of this new law whether the law should be applied retroactively to injuries which occurred prior to the enactment of the legislation. On one case, a wife was cut by an electrical circular saw operated by her husband. She received 200 stitches in her right arm, wrist and hand at the time of the injury, spouses were prevented from suing each other due to interspousal immunity. However, the wife filed suit in this case after the new legislation was enacted.

The husband's insurance company defended the case and argued that the plaintiff should not recover in this case since the action was barred by the law at the time of the injury. The plaintiff argued, on the other hand, that the new law should be applied retroactively since that was the intention of the legislature.

The original law preventing spouses from suing each other was passed by the General Assembly in 1983. In 1988, as previously noted, the legislature once again provided that there would be no prohibition to personal injury actions brought by one spouse against the other spouse.

The real question in the case cited above is whether the legislature intended the new law to apply to injuries which were sustained before the law became effective. It is important to note that a presumption exists that legislation is intended to apply only prospectively. This presumption is rebuttable only if the law indicates that the legislature intended a retroactive application.

In this case, the Appellate Court felt there was no sense of urgency indicated by the legislature. Nothing in the statements by supporters of the bill indicated that spouses injured before January 1, 1989 should be allowed to sue each other. Therefore, the wife injured in the case noted above was not allowed to bring an action against her husband since her date of injury was prior to the date of the new legislation.

EPA should slow its rush

Despite all logic, the EPA is poised to tear Granite City apart.

The signs have been here for too long. From the first word many months ago until Monday's official announcement, everyone had a reason to suspect that EPA minds had already been made up on our "lead problem." Now it appears the Environmental Protection Agency will spend $25 million to strip the top soil from a 55-block area, without the proof that the work even needs to be done.

As George Bush is fond of saying, federal funds need to be spent in a more prudent manner.

The EPA's willingness to act on supposition defies the theory of local leaders, political representatives, scientists and others who have more than a passing knowledge of what's been going on.

So why is the EPA in such a big hurry to wreak destruction on our area? We'd like to know that, too, since representatives gave all the appearances of actually caring how people felt when conducting a public hearing weeks ago.

EPA has agreed to do blood-lead testing, but isn't waiting for the results to tell us that the project is going ahead.

EPA also isn't putting much stock in another idea, neutralization of lead in soil, a concept advocated by Dr. William Buck, a professor of toxicology at the University of Illinois.

Buck said adding a mixture of lime and phosphates to the soil makes the lead impossible to extract chemically. That means children playing in the dirt could not be contaminated.

Buck said he has used this process to neutralize soil around a smelting operation in Oklahoma. But EPA isn't listening, in fact, doesn't believe neutralization is possible.

EPA's mastermind for this project remains Brad Bradley. He has been given the awesome power of deciding the fate of a large chunk of the Quad City area, and frankly that is scary.

When you think of the federal money at stake and the potential economic losses Granite City and others will suffer, it's even scarier.

Add to all this the terrible image cast upon the community. The ramifications of that will be felt for years to come, no matter what EPA says or does from this point on.

There is no doubt that the Taracorp battery pile at 15th and State is a lead-contaminated danger. But that proves nothing as far as the general surroundings.

This project will take another two years to advance, so there is time for an active fight on it, even legal action where possible. EPA should be made to prove the risk, before it spends the cash.

Clean-air bill badly flawed

Historic clean-air legislation approved Tuesday in the Senate is opposed, appropriately, by local lawmakers.

Sen. Alan Dixon and Sen. Paul Simon were on the losing side of an 89-11 vote. Rep. Jerry Costello will fight for amendments in the House but expects help from only six of the worst-11 states.

Since all three of these legislators are clean-air supporters, it is obvious the proposal is flawed, imposing too heavy a burden on this state. Steep electrical rate increases are feared, as well as extensive layoffs of coal miners.

The admirable goals, but it is being approached awkwardly. High-sulfur coal states were omitted from the committee, as well as all midwestern industrial states.

Eighteen states including Texas would be allowed to increase their sulfur dioxide utility emissions even though some are among the top polluters. Texas, in fact, is the worst of all the 50 states for industrial sulfur dioxide pollution.

Nine-tenths of acid-rain reduction would be achieved in nine states, although those nine only account for half of the problem. Unemployment pay would be barred for Illinois miners seeking to make a transition to other types of work.

Dixon foresees government-caused "economic devastation" that will be just as severe, and more long-term, than what Hurricane Hugo did to the southeastern states. That's no way to treat the Midwest.

Rest in peace? C'mon, sport

You would think that somewhere in this great land of ours, where expressways can be made to rise majestically above farm fields and the National Anthem can be sung by Bob Seger, there could also make a law regulating viewing of major sporting events.

Viewing, that is, in the comfort of one's self as opposed to the company of one's family.

After years of blowing the Super Bowl, taking phone calls during the World Series and watching but not being able to hear the Kentucky Derby, I used a new strategy Monday to watch the big NCAA Final game between Las Vegas and Duke.

I had waited weeks, so come 8 p.m. I excused myself from the rest of the family and quietly sneaked off to a side room where I knew I could catch the action in relative peace. Or should I say peace from my relatives.

Alas, they found me. First my wife, just as Brent Musburger was analyzing a play. "So what's happening to Brent Musburger anyway?" she asked. Or "What's him talking," I responded.

"I thought he got fired."

"Not yet on record. I stared her down and she left."

A few minutes later, I marched the children. "Dad, they said, 'we have to go to bed.'"

"Oh," I said. "Why are you telling me?"

"Because you're sitting on our bed, Dad."

"It was my turn to creep off to another room. But at least the noise-makers were put down for the evening."

Minutes later, just as I was getting back into the game, I returned the wife.

"Do... NCAA games have half times?" she asked innocently.

Dennis Grubaugh

"Of course, they have half times!"

"How long are they?"

"I have no idea!" I stared her down again, and once more was left to my fate.

But time is precious and everyone finds ways to use it. A few minutes later she looked up to see my oldest son peering down at me.

"Dad, what does the 'N' stand for in UNLV?"

"Nevada!" I shrieked. He screamed.

It was now past half time, and most of the game still had not registered.

My wife returned. She eyeballed the set and saw one of the coaches chewing on a towel.

"Who is that guy?" she asked. "Jerry Tarkanian," I replied.

Then she saw the dancing shark next to him, but somehow I couldn't bring myself to explain about Tank the Shark.

A few questions later she realized she could stick around as long as she didn't talk. The last 10 minutes of the game were upon me, and I didn't want to miss them.

Finally it was peaceful. Too peaceful. The next thing I knew she was punching me on the shoulder. "Wake up," she said. "The game's over. You missed it. It was great."

Yep, the biggest point spread in tournament history. Somehow I just knew it would be.

Labor supports joint use plan for Scott base

To the editor:

I am writing in support of Scott Joint Use. I have read and heard much about "save the land." I think it is time to take an in-depth look at what will happen if the joint use of Scott Air Force Base becomes a reality.

(1) There will be 5,000 new jobs created, plus 1,500 construction jobs during the initial construction phase.

(2) New business will locate around the airport. This will result in a larger tax base for St. Clair County.

(3) The people of southern as well as southwestern Illinois will have needed airline service closer and quicker than traveling to Lambert International.

(4) Joint use will supplement Lambert and insure adequate aviation needs for our area.

(5) Joint use will enhance

Scott Air Force Base, insuring its future for many years to come.

Considering the above five points, it would seem to me to be only common sense that the land could not be put to a better use than to improve the lives of everyone who lives in southwestern Illinois.

In my 20 years as a labor leader in this area, I have seen many large public projects being constructed. The latest was the construction of Interstate 255 from Jefferson Barracks to F270.

Every time, the land owners have received very fair settlements for their properties. Now is the time for us to stop talking and get together and support Scott Joint Use.

Trees are worth fighting for, deserve respect

To the editor:

Everyone who knows me and everyone I have worked for can verify that I have given them at least one lecture on trees, so how can I be expected to resist this one?

This cause I have pursued my entire life.

In my opinion they command as much respect and effort as the elephants.

It requires as much time to develop, besides being necessary and beneficial.

I recently suggested to Illinois Power to start a public relations campaign to save trees, instead of sending butchers in to devour everything accessible.

I took off work to be assured the trees in front of my house wouldn't be overtimed again. A drive through Lakewood subdivision can quickly assure a person there are a few of us in the world. Mankind and trees can co-exist.

I wonder how many people appreciate the silent beauty of a senior white oak with branches as large as most main tree trunks, growing in a straight horizontal position.

Thank God that someone saved a few so that I may show my daughter. Seeing an old white oak must give me the same satisfaction that viewing the great pyramid or the Statue of Liberty gives other people. I can't imagine anyone receiving a macho thrill from cutting a tree for the sake of playing with their Christmas toy.

I have heard that one of our neighboring states has a zoning ordinance applying to trees, as well as streets and sidewalks, each time a parcel of land is developed.

This being one of the largest states in the union and a major agricultural state, Illinois should be a leader in that respect also.

MAX SHAFFER, Collinsville

When help is needed, best place to go is church

To the editor:

There are so many organizations working to help. Which is good, but — mothers, fathers and children — the best place to go to get help is church. Please don't underestimate the power of God. He hears our prayers. He knows if we mean it.

So, if you don't have a church, please come to Johnson Road General Baptist Church, located across the street from Frohardt School.

Believe me when I say God is real. You haven't lived till you know Him. Jesus died on the cross for you. What are you doing for Him?

If you need a ride, call me, Fay Ryan, 931-4161.

Opportunity of decade for area economic development

To the editor:

The economic development opportunity of the decade is knocking at the door of southwest Illinois in the form of Scott Air Force Base expansion.

We have every sound reason to let opportunity in.

An examination of the facts makes it clear that expanding

Scott into joint military and commercial aviation use is an economically and socially sound solution to an areawide need.

The resulting economic benefit would be enormous.

Thousands of temporary and permanent jobs would be created for area residents in virtually every industry, and an estimated $996 million per year would be pumped into the local economy.

No other plan has nearly as much positive economic impact as the Scott proposal.

Equally important is the development magnet that Scott would establish for the area.

It is no secret that more inter-industry and opportunities for further development would be generated within and from outside of the region, offering greater prosperity and increased tax revenues for communities in the future.

The obvious starting point for solving the St. Louis area's airport capacity needs is to implement the Scott plan.

JAN DUGGAN, Edwardsville

Advice given on what to do if you find a stray animal

The following information is from the Madison County Humane Society.

When you find a stray dog or cat, you initially must determine if the animal is a homeless stray.

If it is thin, shabby, and without a collar, it probably has no home.

Even if it does have an owner, it should not have been running loose.

If it has a tag, call the owners and tell them you have found their pet.

If the pet has no tag, contact Madison County Animal Control and inform them that you have found a stray. Also, be sure to inform your local humane society.

The area humane societies are:

• Madison County Humane Society, 656-4405.

• Alton Area Animal Aid, 452-3721.

• Association for the Protection of Animals, Granite City, 931-7030.

• Humane Society of Collinsville, 343-5689; and

• Highland Animal Shelter, 654-6067.

Next, place a found ad in the local papers. Some offer free found ads as a public service.

If you are unable to locate the owner, you can help the hapless pet by caring for it and attempting to find it a responsible home.

If you are unable to care for the abandoned pet, take it to the appropriate animal shelter.

As a responsible citizen, you can be proud that you are not leaving the poor creature to an uncertain fate and possible starvation in the streets.

For information on the many homeless kittens and pups awaiting adoption, please call the Madison County Humane Society at 656-4405. The Madison County Humane Society is open 9:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday. It is closed from noon to 1 p.m. weekdays.

Planners look down road to the future

District 8's Klohr keeps IDOT on track with roads and bridges

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

Numerous road and bridge improvement projects are started, starting or scheduled to start in this area, courtesy of the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Dale Klohr, IDOT District 8 engineer, outlined the projects this week for the Press-Record. Three big ones are the rebuilding of the Broadway viaduct over the railroad yards in Venice and the widening of Nameoki and Pontoon roads. The second project will begin in July and the third the following summer.

A half-dozen other major projects have no definite start-up date but will begin by 1994.

The Venice viaduct over Terminal Railroad Association tracks and yards had long been in need of reconstruction. The $3.3 million contract was awarded in January 1989 to Keller Construction Co. of Edwardsville. It will be finished this fall, Klohr said.

Nameoki Road (Illinois 203) will be widened to five lanes between Pontoon Road and Madison Avenue with the addition of a two-way left-turn lane down the middle.

The $1.5 million project will include installation of new electric signals. A contract will be awarded in June, Klohr said, and construction will begin in July and take two years.

Pontoon Road will be widened to three lanes between the Alton & Southern tracks and Illinois 111 in Pontoon Beach with the addition of a two-way left-turn lane. The $1.1 million project also includes installation of covered storm sewers, Klohr said.

The district engineer also told Rotarians that two lanes are to be added to the existing four-lane 1-270 river bridge. The bridge is designed to accommodate the widening, he said.

To make the 1-270 canal bridge six lanes wide, a new structure will be built there, with the current four-lane truss bridge then torn down.

Several projects in St. Clair County also are likely to be of interest to Quad Citizens, Klohr said, the major ones being renovation of the Poplar Street Bridge complex and resurfacing and straightening of Illinois 3 between Venice and East St. Louis.

Phase I of the Poplar Street renovation is already well on its way to completion. Ramps are being widened to two lanes to improve traffic flow.

Phase II is a major rehabilitation of the Poplar Street roadway from the river to Broadway in East St. Louis — has not been scheduled yet. There will be an announcement soon about when this will begin, Klohr said. He said Phase II will cause additional rush-hour delays of a half-hour or more when it is begun.

For the third time in recent months, a lone construction bid has been received, one that is well over the advance cost estimate. The other two, by the same bidder, were rejected.

Phase III will consist of mainline pavement widening and bridge rehabilitation from Broadway to the B&O Railroad.

By 1994, additional ramps will be constructed to and from the Martin Luther King Bridge to reduce weaving traffic movements on the I-55/64/70 mainline.

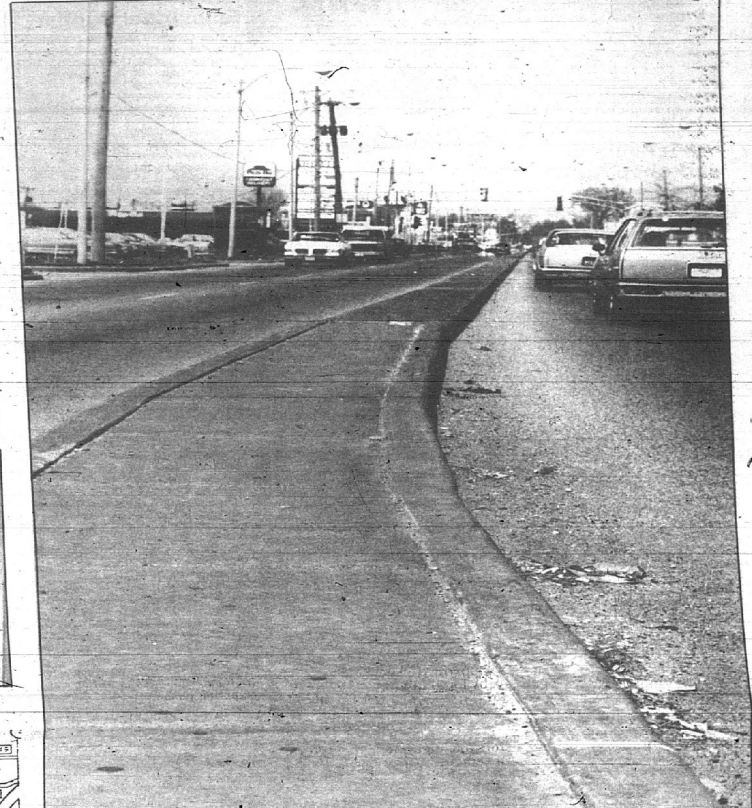

It also is hoped that the King Bridge will be tied in to the interstate highway system on the Missouri side.

The Illinois 3 project is in its engineering phase only. Construction and land acquisition are not included in the current five-year plan ending in 1994.

New one-year and five-year plans are established each year. Many of the bridge and highway improvements are being expedited as a result of the approval of increased motor fuel taxes.

Dale Klohr

Planning for the future

The accompanying map of the southwest portion of Madison County, prepared by the Illinois Department of Transportation, includes the following local projects. These listed are marked with the appropriate corresponding number from the map, where applicable.

•(19) Replacement of the McCambridge Avenue viaduct (Illinois 203) in Madison. A new facility will be built to the west and then the present viaduct will be removed, Klohr told Granite City Rotarians this spring. He said the estimated $3.5 million contract will be awarded late this year, but first some agreements have to be reached with the railroad lines that use the tracks under the viaduct.

•Repairs to the Old U.S. 66 (Chain of Rocks Road) bridge over the Chain of Rocks Canal. This $550,000 project will probably be done this year, Klohr said.

Scheduled to begin during the current five-year plan are the following:

•Widening of Interstate 270 from four to six lanes between Illinois 111 and Illinois 3.

•The design phase of widening 1-270 between Illinois 3 and the Mississippi River bridge.

•(18) Resurfacing of nearly five miles of Illinois 203 between Nameoki Road (by way of Edwardsville Road and McCambridge Avenue) south to Collinsville Road (Old U.S. 40).

•Construction of F&P (Federal Aid Primary) 413, extending the route of I-255, between I-270 and Illinois 143, from Pontoon Beach to South Roxana. There is no construction scheduled on this road north of 143 for at least another five years, Klohr said.

•(13) Resurfacing of Illinois 111 between Illinois 162 and Chain of Rocks Road.

•(21) Resurfacing of Illinois 162 between Illinois 157 and Illinois 111.

•(15) Rehabilitation of the Horseshoe Lake area bridge over the Cahokia Canal west of Illinois 157 in Pontoon Beach.

•(16,17) Replacement of the Illinois 111 bridges over the Horseshoe Lake area one mile north and two miles north of Collinsville Road.

•(20,21) Bridge deck repairs on Sand Prairie Lane at I-55-70 and at the Cahokia Canal one mile south of Illinois 111.

3 Karandjeff generations active in banking here during 8-decade span

There has been Karandjeff family involvement in Granite City banking virtually throughout this century, and the Central Bank System headed by Drew Karandjeff still takes an active role in the local community.

The bank holding company was created in 1982. Now headquartered at Fairview Heights, the Central banks have become a $232 million financial enterprise that undoubtedly would make Drew's grandfather, Ernest, and late father, Henry, proud of what has been accomplished. Henry died in 1985 and Ernest in 1966.

All three Karandjeffs served as president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce and led successful local United Way fund raising.

IT'S INTERESTING to review local financial chains' annual reports and the latest from Central arrived at my home during the weekend.

The annual meeting will be held bright and early — a a.m. — April 17 at 1 Central Bank Building, Fairview Heights, across the street from St. Clair Square.

The system includes Central Bank of Granite City, which consists of the former Granite City Trust and Savings Bank (opened in 1910) and former American Heritage Bank (started in 1958 as the American National Bank).

ALONG WITH Granite City and Fairview Heights, there also are banks in the system in Glen Carbon, Marine and Carlinville.

Drew (Ernest A. Jr.) heads Central Bank as chairman, president and chief executive officer and Central Bank as chairman.

Bart J. Solon is the system executive vice president and the bank president and chief executive officer.

Philip A. Williams is president and CEO of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Carlinville.

ATTORNEY Leo H. Konzen serves on the system's board along with Karandjeff, Solon, Clyde E. Beinfahr and Thomas

Bill Winter

R. Remington.

The Central Bank directors are Karandjeff, Solon, Frank J. Draganich, Joseph J. Kassy Jr., Robert P. Lombardi, Richard W. McGovern, David M. Wilson (system) Senior Vice President Donald R. Houk.

Other system officers include Daryl L. McClard, vice president and treasurer, Robert Dietrich, vice president — data processing, Brenda C. Knight, secretary, and Martha Dorris, assistant vice president — data processing.

Among other Central Bank officers are Houk, executive vice president and trust officer; and Daniel A. Debert, senior vice president.

THIS SPRING, Central will offer its customers "complete access to funds throughout the world as we join the CIRRUS network through our Total Tellers," Karandjeff said in the report.

"Quality is fundamental to Central's strategy. Quality assets, people, products and facilities support our basic strategy to achieve above peer-group performance."

THE YEAR OF 1989 is looked back on as a time in which many long-term goals were met, after years of acquisitions and expansion.

Metropolitan area operations were merged and the corporate offices were relocated.

All locations were improved to better serve customers, including extensive remodeling of the large bank at Fehling and Nameoki roads.

The 2400 Madison Ave. banking center remains busy, and the downtown Granite City building has been closed and turned over to the city government.

THE LARGEST INTERNAL growth in Central's history was experienced in 1989.

Another significant development was the redemption of 15,376 shares of Central common stock through purchases from shareholders. As a result of earnings and share reduction in shares, book value rose from $119 to $130 a share.

In the last quarter of 1989, it was decided to establish a special provision to the reserve for loan losses. This had a negative effect on earnings for the year, but it allowed Central to enter the new decade "in a position of strength and to better focus on our goals for the future."

KARANDJEFF SAID, "During 1990, we will continue to expand our reach in the markets in which we operate and to rectify our efforts toward enhancing relationships with our customers.

"Our strategy is to offer an array of streamlined, customer-friendly products and services for customers who desire quality."

"We will continue to strive to establish a clearly identifiable position in the marketplace and to price our products to reflect the value that they provide to the consumer."

"WE WILL ENHANCE or introduce a number of new products in 1990."

"Our commercial bankers and senior management are dedicated to maintaining the good response time and access to top management that our customers have come to appreciate and expect."

"As an example of this commitment, we expect to achieve status as a Small Business Administration certified lender, which will greatly expedite SBA loan approval."

Fish fry Friday in Madison

The Adoration Society of Sacred Heart Polish National Catholic Church will sponsor a fish-fry on Friday, April 6, from 3:30 to 6 p.m. The public is invited.

The dinner will be served at 330 Reynolds St., Madison, and the menu will include Icelandic cod, macaroni and cheese, slaw, dessert and beverage.

Carryout service will be available and Polish "piersogi" will be offered for sale, sponsors said.

Team ministry workshop April 7

A team ministry workshop for all denominations will be held Saturday, April 7, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Edwardsville Day's Inn, Interstate 270 and Illinois 157.

There will be a $10 registration fee, which includes a soup and salad bar luncheon. For more information, call 452-2020, 345-4161 or 656-7631.

Lowry in concert at Nameeki UMC

Dr. Eugene Lowry, nationally known speaker, teacher, author and pianist, will appear Sunday, April 8, at Nameeki United Methodist Church, Pontoon Road and Primrose Avenue.

Here's What Your Neighbors Are Saying

ED HAGAUER Granite City

"In the 4 or 5 years that I have been taking my car to Dempsey-Adams for repairs, I have been completely satisfied. They always explain thoroughly what needs to be done, they get it in and back to me in a hurry, and they make sure it is repaired to my satisfaction. If I were not satisfied, I wouldn't keep coming back to Dempsey-Adams."

The devotions and prayer calendar were given by Frances Brake. Appreciation was extended to Juanita Craycraft, Agnes Lindsey, Peggy Smith, Leta Koltenburn and Sylvia Massman for missionary moments, which were presented to the church for the Home Missions program.

Pontoon Baptist Church will host the Rev. Gary Holder for its revival services, Sunday through Thursday, April 8-12.

The local church is participating in a national campaign by Southern Baptists for simultaneous revivals under the theme, "Here's Hope: Jesus Cares For You." Holder is now from Dallas, Texas, but is widely known for his work at Tower Grove Baptist Church in St. Louis.

Special nights include: Monday — Sunday School Rally; Tuesday — Super Senior's Soup Supper; and Wednesday — Atterlow Celebration. Everyone is invited to attend the revival and hear one of America's finest preachers, the Rev. Kevin Kerr, pastor, said.

The Rev. and Mrs. Kevin Kerr recently returned from Memphis, Tenn., where they attended a relative's 25th wedding anniversary celebration.

Other local guests attending the event were Mary Raitt of Waterloo, Ruth Raitt of Duplo and Stephanie Kerr of Granite City.

Additional visitors at Thomas Martin's 87th birthday party, who were not included among the guests listed in a previous item, were: Marsha, John and Jori Kenner, Barbara and Gail Chaney, Jane Kerr, Louise Haynes, Harold McBride, Harlon Luffman, Juanita and Ralph Craycraft, Laura Ullman, Barbara and Larry Rugsby, Ben and Lula Frost, the Rev. and Mrs. Kevin (Joyce) Kerr, Stephanie Kerr and the honoree's daughter, Maxine Green.

Marilee Verdu, also a daughter, and her husband, Joe, entertained with playing guitar and singing with the guests.

Help for heart irregularities

A study released in the New England Journal of Medicine estimates that more than $200 million dollars in health care costs can be saved each year with proper medical intervention for patients who suffer from irregular heartbeat, or atrial fibrillation (AF).

Researchers at St. Louis University Medical Center, in collaboration with 14 other institutions, found that most strokes in people with AF can be prevented by taking either aspirin or warfarin, an anticoagulant medication. Both drugs reduce the tendency of the blood to clot and have been found to lower the risk of stroke in patients with irregular heart beat between 50-80 percent.

The study, "Stroke Prevention in Atrial Fibrillation (SPAF)," involved more than 1,240 patients during an 18-month period. The trial compared the effectiveness of warfarin or aspirin in preventing stroke in patients versus those who took only placebos. The national study, which was to last until late 1991, was discontinued more than a year ahead of schedule because of the effectiveness of the two drugs when compared to patients who received no medication.

"We stopped the placebo arm (of the study), because those patients were doing poorly," said Camilo R. Gomez, M.D., co-investigator of the SPAF study, instructor of neurology and director of the Stroke Resource Center at St. Louis University Medical Center. "The difference between those who were taking medication and those taking the placebo was so great that we had to ethically stop that portion of the study."

Just this week, researchers began the second phase of the study, which will examine whether aspirin or warfarin is better in treating patients with AF. It will also seek to identify which patient groups would benefit from each drug.

Atrial fibrillation is a heart condition that affects more than one million Americans and is associated with some 70,000 strokes each year in the United States. Researchers estimate 20,000 to 30,000 strokes should be prevented each year in the U.S. alone when the results of this study are widely applied.

"The study is important in that it demonstrates that treatment with an active agent can significantly reduce the risk of stroke with people with atrial fibrillation and should be treated immediately," said Dorothy Cadell, R.N., clinical nurse coordinator for the SPAF study.

The study was a joint effort by cardiologists, who specialize in heart diseases, and neurologists, who specialize in brain disorders, including stroke.

The cost of the study is estimated at over $4.6 million. Dr. Gomez emphasized that the project will pay for itself in less than a week from health-care savings.

Due to the significant findings of the report, researchers are now looking for more volunteers diagnosed with AF to participate in the study. For more information, contact Dorothy Cadell, R.N., at (314) 577-8767.

TAKING ADVANTAGE: Richard Aurand of Granite City has his blood pressure checked by Doris Bell, a member of the School of Nursing faculty at Edwardsville. Aurand was on the campus in late March attending the annual Senior Citizens Fair which attracts more than 3,000 seniors each year. Visitors to the fair were entertained by a wide variety of groups and received health care screenings and information concerning services available to seniors.

Free skin cancer screenings

To commemorate April as National Cancer Control Month, Lutheran Medical Center invites the public to participate in the hospital's free skin cancer screening program.

The screenings, which are conducted year-round by physicians affiliated with the hospital, are available by appointment in several convenient locations. More than 3,000 St. Louisans have taken advantage of the screening program since it was established in 1987.

Individuals at high risk are encouraged to examine their own skin monthly and undergo professional screening at least once a year. Risk factors include:

- Light-colored eyes (green, blue, hazel).
- Skin that sunburns easily and tans poorly.
- Previous skin cancer.

Grief support group meets in Belleville

St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, will host a grief support group meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, April 9, in Room 601 at the Health Education Building.

The group offers support, concern and growth to people who are grieving the death of a loved one.

For additional information call the hospital's pastoral care department at 234-2120, extension 1342.

- Outdoor employment.
- Indoor employment combined with frequent outdoor recreation.

For more information, call the Lutheran Medical Center Doctor Finder at (314) 577-5773.

'Living Well' screening set at St. Anthony's

St. Anthony's Medical Center is sponsoring a "Living Well" wellness screening on April 24.

A variety of health screenings will be provided from 8 a.m. to noon at the medical center, 10010 Kennerly Road, St. Louis. Participants can have their blood cholesterol, triglycerides, blood glucose and blood pressure checked. Glaucoma testing also will be provided. Results will be available several minutes.

General information on nutrition, exercise, the heart, diabetes, smoking cessation and stress will be presented.

There is a nominal fee for the different screenings. Since participation in the health screenings is limited, appointments are required.

For more information call (314) 525-1250.

•Trailer—

March 23, but Whitaker didn't show up.

"She moved," he said. "The address we had for her on Illinois Avenue wasn't right. Sometimes it's hard to find these people."

A new court date has been set for Friday, but Jakich said Wednesday he wasn't sure if Whitaker, who now lives in Madison, had been served with the papers.

If Whitaker were to miss another court date, Jakich said, the city would probably seek a body attachment on her.

Whitaker said Wednesday she hadn't heard about a court date being set.

"I guess I need to call City Hall and find out what's going on," she said. "I've got some papers at home, but I don't know anything about Friday."

Whitaker said she hired a person to demolish the trailer last week and it should be torn down before too long.

"I had to do something," she said. "People were beginning to steal the siding off of it. At one time I thought it could be fixed up, but now I guess it would cost more than the trailer's worth."

Jakich said he understands the neighbors' complaints, but said the city has to follow all the proper procedures.

"It's slow, very slow," he said. "The house next door (2312 Missouri) is no gem either, but the guy who owns that one lives in Louisiana, so I don't know how we're going to do it."

Obituaries

Lindsey

Michael Lee Lindsey Jr., 25, of Granite City, was pronounced dead at 12:25 a.m. Wednesday, April 4, 1990, in the emergency room of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, from an apparent electrocution and fall at Granite City Steel. A story appears on Page 1.

He was born Sept. 6, 1964, in East St. Louis, and was a lifetime resident of Granite City. He was employed by Tri-City Dismantling Co. as a burner and was a graduate of Madison High School.

Survivors include his son, Michael Lindsey Jr. of Granite City; his parents, Paul and Joice (Webb) Lindsey of Granite City; his maternal grandmother, Iona Webb of Granite City; two brothers, Thomas Lindsey of Granite City and William Lindsey of Madison; three sisters, Tina Schalk and Tammy Lindsey, both of Granite City, and Donna Allison of Sheboygan, Wis.

Visitation will be held from 4 to 9 p.m., today (Thursday), at Lahey-Sedlack Funeral Home, 615 Madison Ave., where funeral services will be held at 10 a.m., Friday. Burial will be in Valley View Cemetery in Edwardsville.

•Clean air—

a national problem and now we're not getting any help when it comes to clean air."

Dixon said, "As this bill evolved, I called for balance and fairness, pointing out inequities in the acid-rain title, and economic inefficiencies in the air toxics section. I received instead a proposal that is unbalanced and unfair."

"This bill has gone through many changes which have helped make things less devastating for the industrial heartland. But the truth is, the bill which was pulled off the floor shortly after being pulled up on Jan. 23 was in need of major surgery."

"Unfortunately, particularly in the acid-rain section, what has been performed was only minor surgery," said Dixon.

"Following months of regular meetings and an untold number of staff hours devoted to finding an equitable solution for the Midwest, a fair compromise for the Midwest was not reached."

"The acid-rain bill which was reported out of committee—a committee, I might add, that has not one member from the industrial Midwest, and not one member from a high-sulfur coal state—was so fatally flawed that we never had a chance of amending it into an equitable bill."

Dixon said the bill put an inequitable burden on Illinois and midwestern states to cut their sulfur emissions, while allowing other states to increase their emissions.

"The bill, for example, seeks to get 90 percent of acid rain reductions in the first phase from just nine states. I suppose that would be fair if these nine states were responsible for all of that pollution, but that is not the case. In fact, these states contribute only 51 percent of the total sulfur dioxide emissions."

"It does not make sense to me that a great number of states will actually be allowed to increase their sulfur dioxide utility emissions as a result of this bill."

Dixon added, "Eighteen states will be permitted to increase their utility emissions from 1980 levels, while my state is being asked to clean up more than its proportionate share. I note that eight of these 18 states are represented on the committee that reported the bill, and that the nine states required to make excess reductions are not represented on the committee."

"It might be assumed that these 18 are being rewarded for being extraordinarily clean, but in fact, some of these states are among the biggest (sulfur dioxide) polluters in the country."

"Texas is the No. 1 industrial (sulfur dioxide) polluter, and No. 3 overall sulfur polluter, and yet its utilities will be allowed to pump 333,000 more tons of sulfur into the air than they did in 1980. Texas' increased emissions will offset over half of the reductions required of my state."

"It is not right that certain polluting states should get a free ride on my state's investment to control a national problem."

"If we are going to target just a few of the emitters of acid rain precursors, then we must spread the burden nationally."

Dixon also opposed the bill, he said, because it would legislate people out of jobs without providing fair compensation.

"This issue is very much like a national disaster that requires the country to rally to the aid of the injured for the sake of the whole. Environmentalism is like a wind that is sweeping through the country, and in most places it will be like a welcome breeze of fresh clean air," Dixon said.

"But in southern Illinois, this clean-air bill is roaring in like Hurricane Hugo, leaving nothing but unemployment in its path."

"Many attempts by the members representing the Midwest and Appalachia, with the able leadership of the president pro tempore, were made to do anything and everything we could possibly think of to prevent high-sulfur coal from going down the tubes."

"We have tried everything possible to prevent legislating people out of a job, and we have been told by the majority of members we cannot do that."

"We said that if we are going to make this conscious decision to put high-sulfur coal miners out of a job, then let's have the decency and humanity to help these people back into a productive life by giving them some unemployment compensation."

But, again, our efforts were defeated," said Dixon.

"This has been one of the most difficult decisions I've made in 40 years. I do not think I could, in good conscience, support this bill, which is so unfair to my own state."

"I thank God that more populous states, such as Illinois, have greater proportional representation in the House of Representatives, and that the House will get a crack at this bill before it is sent to the President. I believe there is a real opportunity for this bill to be corrected in the House, where the state of Illinois has 22 representatives."

"I know that this bill will pass regardless of which way I cast my vote," continued Dixon.

"The way I cast my vote, therefore, is largely symbolic with respect to this particular legislation."

"What I hope to symbolize by voting against this bill is that although Alan Dixon wants and supports a clean air, this is a national problem that should not be forced upon the backs of a few Midwestern states."

Teacher grant deadline soon

A new program to expose teachers to the world their students will face will be supported by a $100,000 grant from Emerson Electric Co. The first Community Leadership Program for Teachers will begin in August. Applicants must be teachers, preschool through high school, in St. Louis or the counties of St. Louis, St. Charles, Franklin or Jefferson in Missouri or Madison or St. Clair counties in Illinois.

The deadline for applications is Monday, (April 9). For more information, teachers may contact Bonnie Morris, Leadership St. Louis Inc., 4050 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63108; telephone (314) 531-1594.

The Community Leadership Program for Teachers was created by Leadership St. Louis, an organization designed to develop community leadership in the region. The program for teachers will involve 50 teachers from public, private and parochial schools throughout the metropolitan area. After a weekend retreat, teachers will participate in a week of workshops discussing regional politics, the corporate experience, local industry and labor, and poverty and social services. Follow-up sessions will be held throughout the year.

The Emerson grant includes $25,000 per year for four years.

Volunteers needed for study

The department of obstetrics and gynecology at St. Louis University Medical Center is currently seeking postmenopausal female volunteers to participate in a new drug study to evaluate investigational estrogen replacement drugs.

Candidates for the study must be between the ages of 45 and 65, and be in good health. Those selected will undergo a comprehensive medical examination. Laboratory work, including a mammogram, as well as drug costs will be paid for by the study. In addition, participants will receive financial compensation (seven office visits). For further information, women may contact Donna Dombrowski, R.N., department of obstetrics and gynecology, Doctor's Office Building, St. Louis University Medical Center, at (314) 577-6045.

Class on Indian harvesting

At the Cahokia Mounds State Historic Site, 7850 Collinsville Road, Prehistoric Indian Harvesting and Cooking will be the subject of a class Saturday, April 21.

Dr. Sidney Denny, an archaeologist and professor of anthropology at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will direct students in the "hands-on" class, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Interpretive Center.

Advance registration and a $10 tuition fee are required. Participants should dress appropriately for the outdoor activity. The class is sponsored by Pepsi-Cola of Alton.

McPike's bill would reduce cost of Metro East economic development

By Dennis McMurray
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD — The cost of economic development in Madison County may drop soon.

Rep. Jim McPike, D-Alton, House majority leader, has introduced a bill to make interest earned on bonds issued through the Southwestern Illinois Development Authority exempt from state taxes.

The interest already is exempt from federal taxes.

The additional tax savings would bring a lower interest rate for those using the bonds. Private firms utilizing the state-guaranteed bonds to finance expansions are responsible for retiring them.

Authority Chairman Earl Lazerson, president of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, requested the changes in the 1989 law that created SIDA.

None of the changes are expected to be controversial.

McPike said.

SIDA can issue revenue bonds supporting public and private projects in Madison and St. Clair counties.

American Electronics Laboratories at St. Louis Regional Airport in Bethalto has applied for an $8.7 million bond issue. Processing of the application should be finished in April or May.

SIDA Executive Director Mary Kane said.

Shell Oil Co. has applied for a $45 million bond issue to help finance anti-pollution equipment at its Roxana refinery, and Laclede Steel Co. has applied for $25 million for environmental projects at its Alton mill.

Adding the state tax exemption to the federal exemption would give SIDA bonds the same status as those issued by a similar development authority in the Moline area, Lazerson noted.

The bill would also give SIDA power to finance reports involving toll bridges without having to acquire and operate them.

Other proposed changes are:
• Extending the authority's quick-take condemnation power for two years. It would otherwise expire this September.
• Defining potential conflict of interest situations for board members.

• Allowing the chairman to inform the governor about a lack of money to pay bondholders at any time rather than just in September.

Rail budget battle again

By Jason Moody
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — For the sixth straight year, Amtrak officials say they need more money than proposed by the President to save passenger service to St. Louis and other cities.

The highly subsidized passenger rail service requested $684 million to continue operations through next year, kicking off what has become a yearly budget battle between Congress, the White House and Amtrak.

Pres. Bush asked Congress not to fund the program in his 1991 budget proposal. Though Congress could give Amtrak the funds, Amtrak officials say Bush's budget would kill almost all services, including a line through Metro East to Chicago.

"If we only get half of what we request we'll still have to end service to almost all communities," said Amtrak spokesman Cliff Black. "We still don't have one profitable corridor."

Last year, Congress gave Amtrak $605 million, $51 million less than requested.

In Illinois, Amtrak's Midwest-ern hub, the rail service boarded 2.7 million passengers in 35 cities in 1989, and employed 2,885 state residents. But Amtrak is far from reaching self-sufficiency in the state.

"Amtrak without Illinois and without this subsidy would not be a national railroad," said Sen. Paul Simon. "Just about every mayor from every Illinois Amtrak community at one time or another has urged me to keep fighting for Amtrak."

When the Rail Passenger Service Act became law in 1970, making Amtrak a private corporation, Congress anticipated it would eventually become self-sufficient. Since then, subsidies have remained high and Amtrak predicts this will continue until 2000.

However, slashing the program now would cost the U.S. even more money in the long run because of binding labor contracts, Black said.

"Employees who lose their jobs as a result of route closures are entitled to labor protection payments for up to six years," Black said. "When we close a line we lose all the revenue it could produce but still keep most of the costs."

The St. Louis to Chicago line barely escaped bankruptcy last year when the Chicago, Missouri and Western Railroad filed for reorganization. Ridership has improved since Southern Pacific purchased the line, according to Debbie Hare at Amtrak's Chicago office.

In the 1989 fiscal year ending in October, 25,713 passengers used the station in Alton, up 17 percent from the previous year. Since then ridership has risen steadily. 27.8 percent more travelers used Amtrak last December than in the previous December.

"A lot of the increase is due to on-time performance," Hare said. Last November, the train was on time 74 percent of the time, in contrast to 10 percent in November 1988.

She said faster, smoother rides have resulted from track work done with $5.5 million in low-interest federal loans secured last year by Simon.

Kemp for ownership by tenants

By Sabrina Eaton
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — Housing and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp in late March asked a Senate committee to fund his efforts to spread tenant ownership of public housing projects nationwide.

Kemp's Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere (HOPE) is modeled on tenant management and ownership programs under way at the Carr Square and Cochran Gardens developments in St. Louis.

The HUD secretary asked the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs to provide $1.2 billion in 1991 for housing subsidies, preservation, enterprise zones, job training and support services to reverse the fortunes of low-income families.

"We need to disavow the belief that poverty is a perpetual condition, that the best poor people can hope for is a life dependent on welfare," Kemp told.

"The goal of the new war on poverty" is to develop a system encouraging individual dignity, initiative, productive work effort and family structure.

Kemp complimented Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., on his efforts to boost a Low Income Housing Tax Credit, expected to produce 125,000 units of low-income housing in 1991.

Missouri Sen. Christopher S. Bond, a vocal supporter of the St. Louis housing plans, supports the concept of tenant ownership but feels a more moderate approach than Kemp's is needed, said spokesman Sally Behringer.

Bond, a member of the Banking Committee, has proposed another bill to promote tenant ownership at lower cost to the federal government, she said.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., questioned whether Kemp's program would end up depleting housing stock, and asked where low-income families would find money to buy their own homes.

"We can get more assistance to low-income families by redirecting our resources," Kemp responded.

Oil spill cleanup plan shown here

By Mary Brasse
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Slow is better when it comes to mopping up oil spills on the Mississippi River.

"If we tow too fast, the oil can go underneath the boom," said Coast Guard Ensign Brian Ellis of the St. Louis Marine Safety Office.

"That's what happened in Alaska. Some of the fishing boats just stirred it up instead of pulling it together," he said, referring to the nation's largest oil spill last March.

The Coast Guard demonstrated the proper technique March 28 with a floating yellow boom and an ordinary bag of peat dumped into the waters of Locks 27 near Granite City.

As soon as the boom, sooty peat hit the water, the Coast Guard headed into the "hazardous zone" with 100 feet of skirted float and three men on a 17-foot outboard motorboat.

The idea is to react to the spill quickly to contain it, but the actual process of placing the boom must be slow, he said.

At 3 knots, or about 3.5 mph, any surface oil will escape under the six-inch skirt on the boom, defeating the purpose, he said.

Ellis told engineers to use fire hoses in place of a boom, or spray the spill like a fire to keep it together until the trained strike team arrives.

Lockmasters can help by spotting a spill and heading off whatever floats down the river with an angled float against the current as a collection device, he said.

The lessons, including specifics on identifying and handling other chemicals, were part of a two-day refresher course for Corps engineers and other personnel.

The Madison County Humane Society has a few tips to help area residents cope with the persistent pests of summer.

"Be sure to treat your home as well as your animal. Fleas spend as little as 10 percent of their lives on your pet."

"Start with a thorough cleaning to eliminate most of the eggs and adult fleas lurking in your home. Wash all pet bedding and vacuum everywhere. Seal the vacuum cleaner bag immediately in a plastic bag and dispose of it.

"Apply an environmental insecticide after vacuuming. Use a fogger 'bomb' or a pump spray. Never apply this type of spray directly to your pet.

"On vacuuming day, shampoo your pet with a flea shampoo. Begin using a flea comb on a daily basis. Dip it in soapy water with each stroke to drown the fleas.

"Always read the label and heed the warning. Pesticides for use on dogs only can kill a cat. Never use pesticides on very young, sick, old or pregnant animals. Remember that your pet's health and comfort are in your hands.

Wyrostek 'new' GCHS grid coach

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — The new head football coach at Granite City High School isn't all that new.

Tom Wyrostek was named to replace Ron Yates at a special school board meeting Tuesday night. Wyrostek, currently the assistant athletic director at Granite City High School, was the only head coach in the 10-year history of Granite City North High School.

"I'm anxious to get back into it," said Wyrostek. "I never really wanted to get out of coaching."

After his 10 seasons at North, Wyrostek coached the Warriors in 1983 — the first year after the two high schools remerged. He then took a leave of absence for one year and returned to teaching in 1985. He's in his first year as the assistant AD.

During his time away from teaching, Wyrostek got into the automobile sales business with Bob Brockland in Fairmont City.

"It was just a financial consideration to leave teaching," said Wyrostek. "I had three kids in college at the time and it's hard to pay tuition for three of them on a teacher's salary."

Wyrostek is a native of Fairmont City and graduated from East St. Louis High School in 1980. He went to the University of Missouri and played as an offensive and defensive guard and linebacker on some outstanding Tiger teams in the early 1960s. Missouri went 11-0 and won the Orange Bowl in 1960.

"I think the worst record we had while I was there was 7-3," Wyrostek said.

He served as an assistant under Jim Morrison and Wayne Williams at GCHS from 1963-72 before taking over the football program at the brand new North High School in 1973. He was 52-41-3 in the 10 seasons of Steele football, with playoff appearances in 1974 and 1981. The 1974 team was 8-2 and lost to Peoria in the first round. The 1981 team was 6-3 and lost to Springfield Griffin in the first round.

Wyrostek was 3-5 at GCHS in 1983 for a total record of 55-47-2 (.539 winning percentage), which puts him second on the all-time list for Granite City coaches behind Byron Bozarth, who won 84 games in 20 seasons.

"You don't know exactly what everyone can do until you're actually coaching, but I saw some bright spots on last year's team," said Wyrostek. Ronny Yates did a superb job getting the players working together in the off-season on weights and that should continue.

"I've talked to all the assistants and none of them have indicated they don't want to return. But I don't know what the timetable is as far as their status is concerned."

"The big thing now is to get the community behind us and get ready for the season."

Athletic director Greg Patton was happy with the board's choice.

"Tom was a superb candidate," he said. "All of our seven finalists were superb. I have no doubt about his coaching ability."

I wasn't with him at North, but I know from playing softball against him that Tom is very competitive.

"He can get on the players and they know they've been chewed out. But he'll come right back and be behind them all the way. Everybody here knows him and it was a great choice."

Patton said he was aware of the rumors that Wyrostek was being groomed all along to replace Yates.

"You always hear that stuff," said Patton. "But all of the candidates were very good and we considered them all."

Wyrostek joins Bill Ohlendorf (basketball) and Bob Stegemeier (baseball) as former-North head coaches in charge of their respective sports at the high school.

CBC fortunate to get split with Warriors

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — One more call. One more well-executed play. That's how close the Warriors came to a double-header sweep Wednesday and a 3-0 start.

Instead, CBC escaped with a 3-2 win in the nightcap to salvage a split event. Cadet coach Rick Flala admitted his team didn't really deserve. CBC (2-1) scored two runs after two were out in the bottom of the seventh on an error by first baseman Brian Harshany. (Both of Wednesday's games were actually home games for CBC although they were played at Varsity Field.)

"All Brian has to do is catch it and we win," said Warrior coach Bob Stegemeier after his team fell to 2-1. "The guy was out by a half step. (Third baseman Mike) Mueller made a heck of a play on the ball."

Junior Chris Sturdivant took the loss. After getting the first out of the seventh inning, he walked two in a row before Tom Senecyn walked a third. Some of the pitches were, well, close.

"We had three guys struck out," said Stegemeier. "Senecyn had that last guy out twice. The umpire was calling high curve balls strikes, but he wouldn't call a fast ball down

Lady Warriors blank O'Fallon for 1st win

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Both teams were trying to battle back from season-opening losses. But the outcome was almost inevitable.

It's not often a Gene Baker-coached team starts a season with two straight losses. And so it went as the Lady Warriors blanked O'Fallon 2-0 in the home opener Wednesday at Memorial Stadium.

Andria Cline scored in the first half and Jennifer Moniz added an insurance tally in the second half as Granite City controlled play for almost the whole game in evening its record at 1-1. O'Fallon, a 1-0 loser to Alton on Monday, fell to 0-2.

"This one was better for sure," said Baker in comparing the effort to a 4-0 loss to Oakville on Saturday. "The first two goals the other night were direct results of poor plays by our keeper and that put us in a hole.

And Oakville is very good.

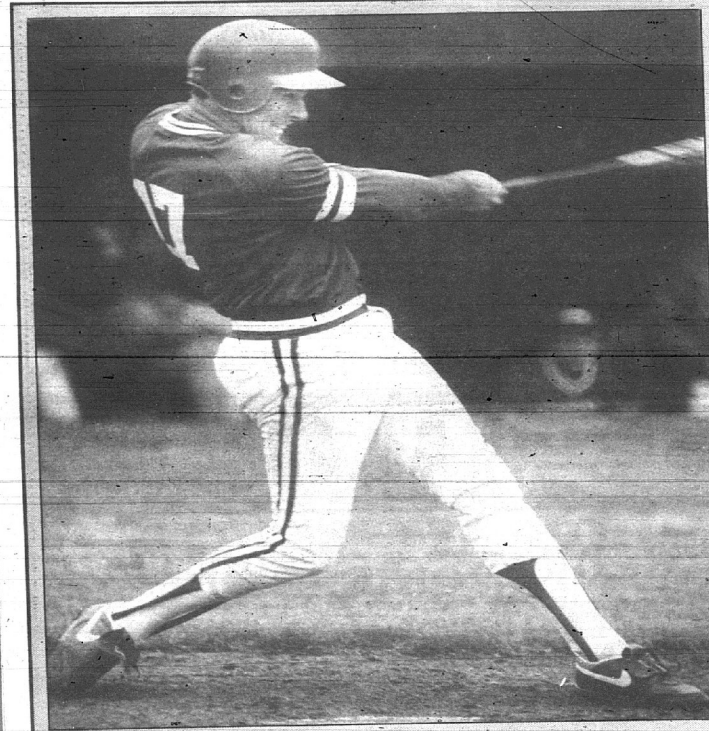

"I didn't push them too much in practice this week. There were a couple of things we needed to work on. We had to improve on head balls, and we did. Mostly we need to get everyone back healthy."

Among those less than 100 percent physically are Beth Epperson, Carrie Ross and Jeanie Grabowski. Cline and Angela Blason also got nixed up Wednesday. But Cline was around long enough to score the Lady Warriors' first goal of the year minutes into the game on an assist from Amanda Witter.

"It was a direct result of all the pressure we had early," said Baker. "We could have had four or five goals right off the bat."

O'Fallon coach Dave Ames felt his team's intensity was about the same as in the Alton game, but it's been a tough

JAMIE HOGAN and the SIUE Cougars beat St. Louis University 9-5 in Saugat on Tuesday and swept Central Missouri 9-5 and 11-2 Wednesday at home to raise their record to 12-3. SIUE is ranked fourth in the NCAA Division II baseball poll. Granite City's Darrin Hendrickson won his third game of the season without a loss Tuesday, pitching into the eighth inning. Hogan, like Hendrickson a 1987 graduate of Granite City High School, is the Cougars' starting second baseman.

Racing season opens April 20-21

The Miller Genuine Draft Motorsports Open is the first of 10 special events to be held at Tri-City Speedway this season, which opens April 20-21.

Late models, sportsman, street stocks and midgets will compete for more than $30,000 in the two-day event. Friday will be an open practice and qualifications for the late models and midgets. Qualifying races and four main events will be featured on Saturday's card.

Tickets are $5 for Friday's card. With children admitted free. Tickets for Saturday are $12.50 for adults and $5 for children ages 6-12. Racing begins at 7:30 p.m.

Tri-City Speedway, under the promotion of Bob Wente and track owner Harry Alton, has several more special events lined up. The Red Baron Shoot Out will be May 16 and the Mel-to Yello "Day of Thunder" is June 13 to celebrate the release of Days of Thunder, starring Tom Cruise.

Visits from 1989 Winston Cup champion Rusty Wallace and America's busiest race driver, Ken Schrader, are also planned this summer. Wallace will come home June 27 for the Miller Genuine Draft-Late Model Classic and a celebration with his St. Louis fans and friends. Schrader will challenge the best of the NASCAR All-Star Dirt Series on Aug. 1 in the first-ever NASCAR event at Tri-City Speedway.

Sprint car specials begin May 4-5 as Texaco/Skoal Racing presents the $40,000 USAC Sprint Car/Midget Nationals. The Copenhagen/Skoal World of Outlaws are scheduled for two appearances, July 14 and Aug. 13. USAC will return Sept. 1 for a Sprint Car National that will open a full weekend of racing at the DuQuoin State Fair.

July 3 has been reserved for a holiday special to include USAC midgets, AARA modifieds and a fireworks display.

All events are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and the gates open at 6 p.m. For ticket and event information, contact Wente Enterprises at P.O. Box 6024, St. Charles, Mo., 63302 or call 314-947-7287.

Rough starts for Warrior softball, tennis

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

The softball season got off to a rough start for the Lady Warriors on Wednesday.

Mascotah blasted Granite City 11-1 in five innings. The Indians scored seven runs in the first inning off starter and loser Mia Pulise. The Lady Warriors got their only run in the second when Carrie Bohnenstiel walked and scored on a triple by Priscilla Meyenburg.

But Mascotah came right back with four more runs and won the game by the 10-run rule.

"I was happy with the pitching, but we didn't play well defensively," said Lady Warrior coach John Hutchings. "Mascotah has a good pitcher and they really hit the ball well.

"We had some field game jitters. But the girls are still encouraged. They didn't get their heads down."

The Lady Warriors had five hits. They open conference play today in a 4:30 home game against Alton, then host Wood River on Friday.

Baum resigns at Cahokia

CAHOKIA — Russ Baum resigned Monday as the head wrestling coach at Cahokia High School.

Baum, of Granite City, led the Comanches program into the upper echelon in his 14 seasons as head coach. He produced 56 state qualifiers, 10 all-stars and two state champions while compiling a 224-13-5 dual meet record. The Comanches qualified for the state team tournament three straight years before losing in the sectional finals this season. They won the Granite City Holiday Tournament in 1987 and 1988.

"I'm interested in accepting a new challenge somewhere else," said Baum. "Administration is a definite interest right now, but I wouldn't rule out coaching at another school."

Baum, 38, received a degree in administration last year at SIUE.

"Losing Russ Baum is a tremendous loss to our program," said Cahokia athletic director Rob Eden. "He must be rated the best coach in the area. But our program will survive, though losing a coach of his caliber won't be easy to replace."

Kevin Bement, Baum's top assistant for the past five seasons, is one of the top candidates for the job.

"Russ taught me a lot about coaching and I'd love to have the job," said Bement.

"Kevin has the capabilities to be a fine head coach," said Baum. "I didn't want to leave the program in a dying state. I know that the program will be in good hands."

Odds against Cubs to repeat

By Rob Rains

Journal Correspondent
No team has repeated as the National League East champion since the Philadelphia Phillies won three straight titles from 1976 to 1978. There is no reason to expect that to change in 1990. Every team in the National League East won at least one division title in the 1980s except for Pittsburgh, whose last championship came in 1979. The Chicago Cubs are the team in the hot seat this year as they try to defend last year's title, but the odds are not in their favor.

Excluding the Cardinals, here is a capsule look at the other five teams in the division entering the season and their chances of winning the division title.

CHICAGO CUBS — The Cubs were not favored to win by many people in 1989, but they did. They won primarily through some very lucky managing by Don Zimmer, who got away with tricks such as using the hit-and-run with two strikes on more occasions than seemed possible.

The Cubs also won because of some stellar work in the bullpen by Mitch Williams, the sudden development of Mike Bielecki in the starting rotation and the play of Dwight Smith and National League Rookie of the Year Jerome Walton.

Williams won't catch anybody by surprise this year and will have to become a better pitcher if he is going to have as good a season. The same is true for Walton and Smith.

The Cubs have a hole at third base and are worried about catcher Damon Berryhill's recovery from rotator cuff surgery. Andre Dawson's knees could fail him at any moment. MONTREAL EXPOS — No team had a worse off-season than the Expos, who lost four key players to free agency — pitchers Mark Langston, Bryn Smith and Pascual, and outfielder Hubie Brooks. All the Expos were left with was a lot of draft choices and a lot of holes that will have to be filled with youngsters.

Those youngsters — including outfielders Marquis Grissom and Larry Walker, infielder Delino DeShields and pitchers Howard Farmer, Mel Rojas and Mark Gardner — are good prospects, but they are not ready to form the nucleus of a contending team. The Expos still have some quality veterans, including Tim Lincecum and Andres Galarraga, but not enough to contend for the title.

NEW YORK METS — The Mets are favored to win the division title, just as was the case for most of the 1980s. But they won the title only twice, in 1986 and 1988. They will have to overcome some big questions if they are to win this season.

The biggest reason the Mets are favored is because of their pitching. They have six quality starters, plus Alejandro Pena and John Franco as a new 1-2 punch in the bullpen. There still is a possibility they will trade one of their pitchers to fill one of their holes, either for a catcher or a center fielder.

For the first time in years, the Mets will be without Keith Hernandez and Gary Carter. But they still have Darryl Strawberry, Kevin McReynolds and Howard Johnson, and have added Mike Marshall through a deal that sent Juan Samuel to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Gregg Jefferies also should be a better player than he was a year ago, but for the Mets to win they will have to improve their defense, find some speed at the top of their lineup and avoid injuries.

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES — Former Cardinal coach Nick Leyva's team should be better than last year, but likely will not be good enough to get out of the basement.

This team was so far down it will take a major rebuilding program that can't be completed in a year. Some young players who can help are on the way, such as lefthander Pat Combs, but many more are needed.

PITTSBURGH PIRATES — The Pirates also should be better than they were a year ago, but that isn't saying a lot. All they have to do is stay healthy to be better, since Andy Van Slyke wasn't really totally healthy for all of 1989; Mike LaValliere missed three months and Jim Golt, who since has signed with Los Angeles, and Sid Bream were out the whole season.

The Pirates signed free agents Walt Terrell, Ted Power and Neal Heaton in an effort to improve their pitching, and they believe Bill Landrum can become a quality closer. They have some other good pitchers, but likely don't have enough to contend for the title.

Briefly

Promoted at Regency Leasing

GRANITE CITY — The Dempsey and Adams Companies have announced the promotion of Dave Strauser to executive vice president of the Regency Leasing Division.

Strauser joined the auto-truck leasing firm almost a year ago as general manager.

Dave Strauser

Regency has offices in Chesterfield, Mo., and Granite City. Regency, formed in 1975, provides customers with all makes and models of cars and trucks, both domestic and foreign. The firm also specializes in fleet leasing.

"We're delighted to announce Dave's promotion," said Jack Dempsey, president of Regency Leasing, a division of Dempsey and Adams Companies. "It isn't often that you are able to obtain the services of a person as experienced and capable as Dave. His work ethic and philosophy concerning customer relations match our tradition of competitive pricing, service and integrity," concluded Dempsey.

In addition to Regency, Granite Glass, Granite Fence and Dempsey-Adams Auto Body form divisions of the Dempsey and Adams Companies.

Two promotions announced

GRANITE CITY — The promotions of Larry Renaker to executive vice president and Bernell "Bud" Haerer to vice president of Braher Bandag Inc. was announced at the annual meeting of the company by its president, R.W. Braher.

Both Renaker and Haerer will maintain their offices at Trunkers Supply in Granite City. This firm is a subsidiary of Braher Bandag Inc., Jacksonville, Ill.

Braher Bandag manufactures Bandag truck tires and is the area's largest Michelin truck tire dealer.

Woman earns PR accreditation

Leslie Houser Eicher, a 1977 graduate of Granite City High School and the daughter of local residents William and Ruth Houser, has earned national accreditation in public relations.

The National Accreditation Board of the Public Relations Society of America said accreditation in PR is granted after successful completion of written and oral examinations designed to test the candidate's knowledge and competence in the practice of public relations.

Leslie Eicher

Candidates must have at least five years' experience in the profession before taking the examination. Eicher was one of 124 people nationwide to pass the exam, which is given twice yearly.

Eicher, who obtained her bachelor's degree in business administration from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, works as an account executive at Franklin and Associates, the largest advertising and public relations firm in San Diego.

Among other accounts, Eicher supervises the public relations campaign for the new $52 million United States Olympic Training Center being built in San Diego.

Her parents are owners of Houser Automotive in Granite City.

Dove Realty hires salesman

Century 21 Dove Realty Inc. is announcing that Ed Schmidt has joined its sales staff.

He took early retirement from Granite City Steel and later attended Belleville Area College, completing the required courses of study to enable him to obtain his real estate salesman and broker license.

Schmidt has been a fulltime agent for over three years and during that time has completed the 21 Sales and Listing course at the Century 21 regional office in St. Louis. He has received additional training in the new Career Trak System at Century 21 Dove Realty Inc., one of the first offices worldwide to institute the new program.

Schmidt is a lifelong resident of Granite City, a Granite City high school graduate, and a Korean war veteran.

He is married to Marge, who teaches in Granite City School District 9. They have three sons and attend St. John United Church of Christ.

He is a member of Granite City Masonic Lodge 877, Low Twelve Club, Eagles Aerie 1126 and the Madison County Police Association. He is an honorary member of United Steelworkers of America Local 67.

Schmidt holds membership in the national and state Associations of Realtors, the Granite City Board of Realtors and the Multiple Listing Service.

Appointed as loan officer

GRANITE CITY — Wally Gorski, president of MPS Mortgage Co. located at 3703 Nameoki Road, has announced that Penny Duncan, one of the top producers in the real estate industry over the past 18 years, will join MPS as a loan officer.

Duncan, who has consistently finished in the top 10 percent of Board of Realtors sales personnel, formerly was a loan originator for Illinois Federal, where she was the number one loan originator for four years in a row, producing a record of $18.4 million in residential loans in 1986.

Gorski said, "We are very proud to have this most respected loan officer become a part of our already fine staff. Penny is a longtime friend and we consider ourselves lucky to have her on board."

Duncan said, "In my years in the real estate and mortgage industries, I have seen many real estate salesmen lose a hard-earned commission because their buyer could not qualify for some super low interest rate that a mortgage company quoted them. MPS is competitive with anyone in the industry with respect to interest rates, but I won't quote a rate that I believe the buyer cannot qualify for."

K mart 'totally turtle' for April

"Attention 'Dudes,' 'Ninja Nuts,' 'Turtle Troopers' and K mart shoppers."

K mart's familiar customer greeting might sound a little different this month. That's because the retailer is going "Totally Turtles" with a promotion surrounding the release of the new live action movie "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles."

Fans of these heroes in a half-shell can shop for Turtle paraphernalia, win Mutant Munchies for a year, sign up as an official fan club member and gaze at store banners with photos of these stars from the sewer as they shop their local K mart.

The Turtles, created in 1984 as comic book characters, have enjoyed a success story that has generated the highest rated animated television series, a Nintendo video game cartridge and more than 75 different licensed products including games, food and clothes.

"The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles have been very popular for us since the licensing took off in 1986," said Bill Parker, vice president of sales and marketing.

"Our promotion with the release of this movie shows that we are on trend with the interests of American consumers."

Between now and April 15, Turtle fans can enter to win a grand prize trip for six to California which includes air fare, hotel accommodations, spending money and a pizza party. Other winners will receive Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle frozen pizza for a year, collectible sets or official Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle bandannas.

Entry forms for the sweepstakes and applications for the Turtle Force fan club will be available at K mart service desks.

K mart will be the headquarters for official licensed Turtle merchandise including clothing, toys, jewelry, the movie soundtrack and a sports squeeze bottle.

The live action motion picture was released nationwide on March 30 in more than 1,200 theaters. The film features costumes created by Jim Henson's Creature Shop and both live stunts and animatronics. Families across America will see the Turtles as they've never been seen before.

Commenting on the association, Sandra Rich, president of marketing, New Line Cinema, said, "We're excited to be partners with a retail outlet of the magnitude and reputation of K mart in this unique promotional venture."

"Together, K mart and New Line Cinema's 'Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles' should create lots of added excitement and fun."

K mart Corp. serves America with over 4,000 retail outlets in all 50 states and in Puerto Rico and Canada.

IRS changes reimbursement rules

By Sylvia Porter

Employees and employers alike are being thrown off guard this tax season because laws about reimbursement of expenses changed suddenly, retroactively, at the end of 1989.

You may be in for a tax increase you didn't expect.

The rules for unreimbursable expenses have not changed. Individuals treat unreimbursable business expenses as miscellaneous itemized deductions. If you as an employee do not have business or other itemized deductions in excess of 2 percent of your income, forget your unreimbursable business expenses — you cannot deduct them.

The hot potato for 1989, and then 1990, is reimbursable expenses, according to the editors of Bender's Federal Tax Service.

Generally, before 1989, reimbursement for expenses could be excluded from an employee's income. If the reimbursements were included in an employee's income, the expenses were deductible above the line, without regard for the 2 percent floor.

or whether the employee itemized deductions.

For 1989, reimbursements still can be excluded from income or, if included in income, deducted above the line, but only if you have a reimbursement arrangement with your employer which is an accountable plan.

If you don't, all reimbursements must be included in income regardless of whether your employer reported them as income or not.

These reimbursed expenses can be deducted only as itemized expenses below the line.

What is an accountable plan? It's a new device that every employer should institute to protect the employees.

It can be as simple as asking for receipts of excess advances on a timely schedule, and some form of substantiation of expenses.

If your employer does not have an accountable plan, you may have to include reimbursed expenses in your income, that your employer didn't — causing you to have underpaid your basic city, state, federal, Social Security and unemployment taxes.

Without such a plan, you must include your reimbursements as part of your gross income. At that point you either take your standard deduction and don't take a deduction for the expenses, or itemize your expenses and deduct employee business expenses subject to the 2 percent floor.

It wasn't until December that the IRS announced that reimbursable employee expenses paid according to the accountable plan must be excluded from an employee's income by the employer.

How do you prove the accountable plan for 1989 after the fact? And what do you do when your company already included reimbursements in your gross income, forcing you to take special steps to deduct, those amounts?

After 1989, employers, cannot include in your gross income reimbursable expenses if paid under an accountable plan. You cannot deduct them, at least above the line.

All other reimbursed expenses are included as part of your gross income. Those expenses are only deductible if they are itemized, and they are subject to the 2 percent floor.

Matthew Bender, editors advise the following:

"Arrange for reimbursement by your employer for everything you possibly can. If you are not reimbursed, and the expense was reimbursable, you will never be able to deduct it anywhere, unless you tried to get reimbursed and didn't."

"If reimbursed expenses were included in your W-2, ask your employer if the company's reimbursement arrangement is an accountable plan. If they say yes, these expenses may be deductible above the line. If they say no, the expenses will be deductible only as itemized expenses."

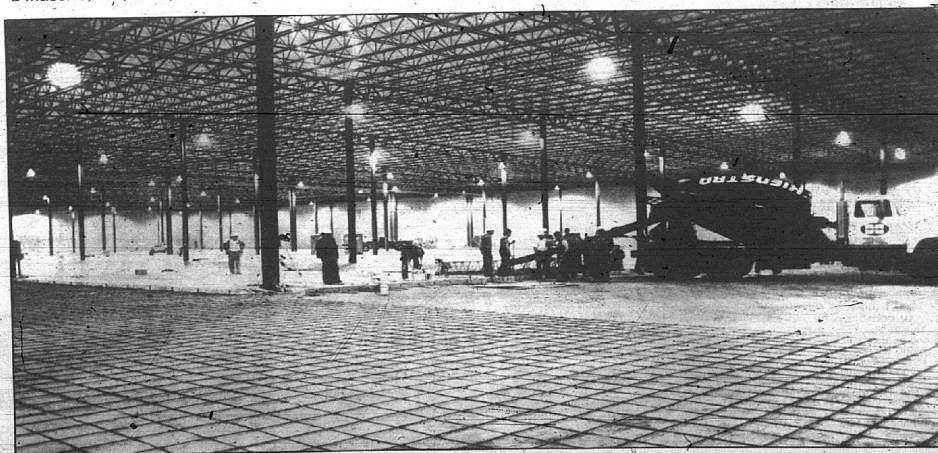

"Investigate whether your employer includes reimbursable expenses in your income. Since the rules have changed, you should request that they not be included if there is an accountable plan in effect."

"Get a receipt for everything. Your employer may require more explanation than in the past. You also may need to support your own claim if you itemize deductions."

the ribbon cutting also got a sneak preview of the huge facility as concrete finishers pour the floor of the structure last week.

'Opportunity Knocks' but no answer

It sounded like trouble when Dana Carvey's Church Lady character from "Saturday Night Live" was being rushed into the coming attractions at the last minute for Carvey's new film "Opportunity Knocks" (R), even though the character is not in the film.

After seeing "Opportunity Knocks," it's obvious the comedy is indeed in trouble.

The film is not funny, and it will need every bit of help it can get to attract people to the box office, once the initial word-of-mouth is out.

Carvey, whose previous feature films include "This Is Spinal Tap" and "Tough Guys," plays Eddie Farrell, a small-time con man in Chicago with big-time ambitions. Carvey and his equally inept partner Lou, played by Todd Graff, manage average earnings in their profession.

The boys make a big mistake when they try to spin Sal, a guy who turns out to be a big-time mob figure who would love to give Eddie and Lou some new shoes made of cement and send them on a walking tour of Lake Michigan.

The boys split up, with Eddie heading for the well-to-do north shore of Chicago where he feels he will be safe until Sal cools down. After breaking into the home of a business executive who happens to be on vacation, Eddie gets mistaken for the man's best friend from another city. Soon the neighbors have

Harry Hamm

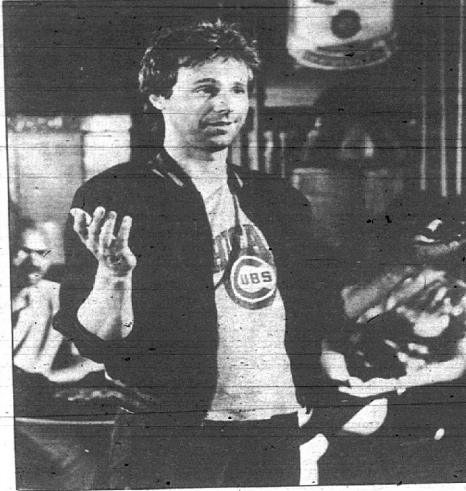

Eddie inadvertently involved in the biggest victim of his life as he assumes the role of a financial genius who eventually gets offered a top job as head of a manufacturing company.

Eddie then embarks on what he refers to as "the love con," pretending to fall for a girl named Annie, played by Julia Campbell, who is the daughter of the executive who offered Eddie his CEO position. The executive is played by Robert Loggia.

The script of "Opportunity Knocks" is constructed in segments — an obvious attempt to give Carvey a framework to work in that parallels his great success on "Saturday Night Live." But Carvey seems out of his element and almost totally uncomfortable with the character of Eddie.

Carvey is a talented, funny young man, but neither of those qualities is much in evidence in "Opportunity Knocks." It's a case of right actor, wrong script. Rated PG-13 (language and mild violence). Running time: 100 minutes. Critics' rating based on four stars.

Harry Hamm is entertainment editor for both KFOA-TV (11.20) and the CBS Radio Network.

DANA CARVEY is Eddie Farrell, a small-time con man with big-time ambitions, in "Opportunity Knocks."

Anderson to bring her mystical show to Edison

By Paul A. Harris
Staff affiliate

Few of her fans were surprised to learn that Laurie Anderson's first two announced performances April 20 and 21 in Washington University's 700-seat Edison Theater sold out in a couple of hours.

The concerts are being offered in part as a premium for subscribers to the University's Ovation series, who were given first crack at the tickets. The remaining seats were sold in the blink of an eye.

A recently announced third show, scheduled for 2 p.m. April 21, likely will be greeted with the same enthusiasm when tickets go on sale Monday (April 9).

An accomplished writer, composer, choreographer and filmmaker, Anderson's concert performances have a reputation for being multimedia happenings that are mystical, meaningful and a lot of fun.

The 42-year-old performer recently released her fifth recording, "Strange Angel," on Warner Bros. On the recording, she submits her lyrics — a hybrid of short story and poetry elements — to musical treatments that range from simple incantations to elaborate Latin and Pan-African dance arrangements.

To get the sounds she wanted, Anderson enlisted an impressive field of musicians, including American vocal styl-ist Bobby McFerrin, jazz luminaries Mark Egan, Steve Gadd and Joey Baron, and various stars from Third World music scenes including Brazilian percussionist Nana Vasconcelos and South African bassist Baki Khamale.

For Anderson, marshaling these musical forces was a process of self-discovery.

"I tend to count music pretty differently than most of the people that I've worked with," she said. "Most musicians listen to a line of my music and listen to the way I count it, and say, 'You're crazy.'"

Anderson often propels her deceptively simple story-poems — filled with advertising jingles, pop song lyrics and buzz words — with the force of ceremonial incantations.

"Sometimes I think that I'm not an artist at all, but kind of a thinly disguised moralist," Anderson said. "I'm afraid of preaching and telling people what to do because I barely know what to do with my own life."

"But after napping pretty much through the Reagan years I finally decided that there are some things that I want to say — real simply — because the world just doesn't look the way that it's being described."

Tickets for Anderson's performance at 2 p.m. April 21 are $20 and available at the Edison box office or call (314) 889-6543.

No Oscars, but ... Williams dazzles with ability

Robin Williams did not win the Academy Award for best actor last week on his second try, but he still is one of the most original of all American screen actors.

"Dead Poets Society" (1989, Touchstone Home Video, $89.95), just released on video, demonstrates his skill at blending the comic with the serious. He is inspiring as an English teacher in an exclusive boys school who is determined to make poetry come alive to his class.

The movie itself is full of holes: Williams' classroom riffs are clearly too anachronistic for the 1950s setting and his jokes are strictly for a post-"Family Feud" mentality, to say nothing of the film's absurdly melodramatic ending. But that hardly matters when it comes to enjoying his performance.

Williams is the teacher of everyone's dreams, right up there with Robert Donat's Oscar-winning "Mr. Chips" (1939, MGM/UA, $24.95).

Williams' previous Oscar nomination was for "Good Morning, Vietnam" (1987, Touchstone Home Video, $29.95), another movie in which the stand-up comedian's free-associating comic style is plunked down in a plot whether it fits or not.

In this case, Williams is a disc jockey for Armed Forces Radio in Saigon during the Vietnam War. His irreverent commentary and rock 'n' roll play list raise the ire of the conservative military brass.

Based on the experience of real-life Army radio broadcaster Adrian Cronauer, the film exists solely to give Williams' manic comedy style free-rein. Cronauer himself was happy with Williams' portrayal. After viewing the movie he said, "Robin was the me I would have liked to have been."

Williams' film career began inauspiciously with "Poppye" (1980, Paramount Home Video, $14.95), a movie so bad it can't be seriously recommended, despite Williams' inventiveness in the title role and Shelley Duvall's perfect impersonation of Olivia Oyl.

Much more worthwhile is Williams' second film, an adaptation of John Irving's novel "The World According to Garp" (1982, Warner Home Video, $19.95). With a strange and tough story to tell, Williams reveals his dramatic ability, as well as a rare aptitude for portraying intellectualism, in this moving, absurdist fable.

In director Michael Ritchie's "The Survivors" (1983, RCA/Columbia, $12.95), Williams plays a modern man-at-the-end-of-his-rope. Having lost his job, he identifies a robber and is rewarded by having his life threatened. Freaking out, he retreats to a militaristic survival camp. This black comedy was not a box-office hit, but its wry humor deserves a look.

The gentle humanism of writer-director Paul Mazursky matches Williams' sweet sensibility in "Moscow on the Hudson" (1984, RCA/Columbia Home Video, $79.95). Williams stars as a pre-glasnost Russian circus musician who, while on tour in the United States, defects in Blomdale's.

Williams' two 1985 films, "The Best of Times" (Nelson Home Entertainment, $19.98) and "Club Paradise" (Warner Home Video, $19.98), are both lightweight affairs that are pleasant but not particularly memorable. More fun is his unaltered bit part in Terry Gilliam's wild and imaginative "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen" (1988, RCA/Columbia, $89.95). The delightful and stirring fantasy casts the irrepressible Williams as a literal talking head.

Mason Wiley is a contributor to GQ, Elle, Time, Premiere, Cosmopolitan and The New York Times.

REAL-LIFE DJ Adrian Cronauer was happy with Williams' portrayal of him in "Good Morning, Vietnam," saying "Robin was the me I would have liked to have been."

Craft show this weekend in Collinsville

A Homespun Treasures Craft Show will be held from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, April 7 and 8, at the new Gateway Convention Center 1 Gateway Drive, Collinsville.

Shoppers can select from thousands of country, Victorian and traditional handmade items on display, including dried wreaths and arrangements, country dolls and bunnies, primitive folk art, paper mache, personalized gifts and Easter candy and pastries.

Admission and parking are free. Additional parking will be available at the Holiday Inn and Panama Inn, next to the Gateway Center. Shuttlebus service will run continuously from these points, organizers said.

TNT to present 'A Narrow Bed'

The New Theater will present the St. Louis premiere of "A Narrow Bed" at 8 p.m. April 20 at Soudard Preservation Hall, 1921 South Ninth St., St. Louis.

A preview performance will be at 8 p.m. April 19.

"A Narrow Bed" is about the friendship of two couples who started a commune in the late 1960s, said TNT's Kate Nolan, who will direct the show, which continues through May 6.

Tickets are $4 for the preview, $8 for subsequent Thursday and Sunday performances and $12 for Friday and Saturday shows.

Those who wish ticket information or reservations should call the New Theater box office at (314) 253-8330.

Ste. Genevieve hosts second annual antique show and sale

Ste. Genevieve will hold its second annual Antique Show and Sale on Saturday and Sunday, April 7-8.

Ten shops which form the Ste. Genevieve Antique Dealers Association will be joined for the weekend by regional exhibitors, providing an abundant variety of quality antiques.

On display will be furniture, pottery, glassware, primitives, estate jewelry and collectibles. New at this year's show will be a special booth featuring fine old quilts, selected from the shops of local dealers.

The indoor show will be held Saturday and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Ste. Genevieve Elks Lodge. The lodge is located on Highway 61, two miles north of Ste. Genevieve. Exit 154, off Interstate 55, 60 miles south of St. Louis.

There is a 50 cents per adult admission fee — a one time charge for the entire weekend. Gift certificates from local antique shops will be offered as door prizes.

Food will be available on the premises and free parking will be provided.

Fine restaurants and overnight accommodations are available. For more information, call 1-314-883-7097. Dealer inquiries should be directed to 1-314-883-2292.
